Yes Jennifer, there is a Santa Claus

Why is it children can see things so clearly?

by MIKE KLEIN

The old man removed his cap. A pile of gray hair fell shoulder length as little puddles formed around his black boots. In a minute, all the snow had melted, except for icicles on his long beard.

He moved toward the bench and sat down alongside a lady whose dog had bitten the mailman that afternoon.

The lady's daughter, who was 4 years old and had rosy cheeks from the night air, looked at the old man for a moment, then turned toward her mother and began, "Mom, that's . . ."

"Keep quiet," the woman said. "Won't you ever keep quiet!" The woman looked at the old man briefly, then tugged on her daughter's coat collar as they slid a few feet further down the bench.

THE OLD MAN'S hands were red and raw. He rubbed them together after dropping his sack to the floor. Then he cupped the gnarled hands in front of his mouth and blew warm air into them.

"Stay right there," the patrolman said. "Don't move or you'll be in worse trouble."

The old man's windburnt face hurt. There was the slightest hint of tears in his eyes. He looked out the plate glass front window which had wreathes stenciled around a large

"Holiday Greetings From Your Police" sign.

Then he mumbed something about all the children.

"What are you saying?" the patrolman demanded. The old man said nothing and the patrolman did not ask again.

THE LITTLE girl looked at him once more. She wore tattered clothes, too, as did her mother. Then the little girl buried her hands inside her coat. They were still cold. She had no gloves.

The little girl thought she knew. But she could not tell. "Stop staring at that man," her mother barked.

It was cold outside, very cold, as always this time of year. The old man had not yet warmed up, either. He looked back at the little girl. They both smiled. She saw the tears.

When he looked at his left, the old man saw the patrolman and his lieutenant huddling behind a long, wooden counter. They glanced toward him, then at each other, then back at him.

"Come up here, you," the patrolman said.

THE OLD MAN clutched the sack in his left hand and pushed himself off the bench slowly with his right. He was not so agile anymore. He moved forward slowly, head bowed and all hunched over.

The little girl asked her mother what would happen now. Her mother did not answer, other than to say, "Mind your own business."

His clothes were also tattered and the old man thought he was not making a very good appearance. He had not worked since last year and the rags did not keep him warm anymore. He'd been meaning to find some more clothes but just never got around to it.

The old man stopped short of the counter, looked up uncertainly, then back down again. "Yes," he said. They were the first words he had spoken to anyone.

"What is your name?" the lieutenant said.

The old man did not answer this time.

"What is your name?"

Again, no answer.

THE LITTLE GIRL looked at the old man from behind. She thought she knew. But she could not tell.

The patrolman spoke up this time. "Mister, you're in pretty big trouble. We've been following you around all night. You've been walking up and down every street in this city," the patrolman said.

"Now, either you tell us your name and what-the-hell you're doing out there or we're gonna let you sit in the cell all night and think about it.

"We can't have people roaming around our streets. This is a safe city," the patrolman said. "We take good care of our people. Now what's it gonna be?"

The old man looked up. He would never make it now. It was already too late. There was too much work to be done. He began to cry inside.

"My name," he said, "is Nicholas."

"First or last?"

"JUST Nicholas."

"That's not good enough. What were you doing out there?"

"I can't tell you."

"Why not?"

"Just can't, that's all."

"What's in the sack?"

"I can't tell you.

"Why not?"

"Just can't, that's all."

The lieutenant was annoyed at this fruitless line of questioning. He walked around the counter and snatched the sack away from the old man who protested just a little. He was not so strong anymore.

The little girl felt she would cry. She thought she knew. But she could not tell.

They took the sack behind the counter and removed its contents. "Look at all these toys," the lieutenant said in wonder. "Where'd these come from?" he asked.

"I can't tell you," the old said.

"Are they yours?"

"No," said the old man.

"Then where did you get them?"

"I can't tell you."

"What can you tell us?"

"That's about it."

"MISTER I'VE had all of this that I want," the lieutenant said. "We're gonna let you spend the night back here and maybe tomorrow morning you'll remember where you got these toys and some of the other things we want to know."

The lieutenant barked a command. "You can leave your belongings here. Then follow the patrolman."

As the old man began moving away, the little girl pulled her hands out of her coat pocket, stood up and began to cry.

She knew. But she hadn't told and now it was too late.

"Mommy," she said, "They've locked up Santa Claus."

"That's ridiculous. Sit down and be quiet."

The lieutenant approached the long, wooden counter. "Lady, are you here for the dog?"

"Yes," she said.

"Well, if you've got $15, you can have him back."

The lady stood up, turned to her daughter and said, "Stay here. Don't move."

As her mother walked away, the little girl sat down. She put her hands back inside her coat pockets and began to cry once more.

Just as suddenly, she stopped, then quickly pulled her hands back outside her coat pockets.

Her crying stopped. The little girl began to smile. The note said, "For Jennifer, from Santa Claus." And the gloves were the most beautiful she had ever seen.

AN ARLINGTON HEIGHTS family of six was was left homeless Wednesday when a spark from a string of lights set the Christmas tree on fire. The split level home of Dwight Saranzak, 1511 N. Yale Ave., was completely gutted by fire. Saranzak said the tree "went up so fast, all we could do is run." Fire officials estimated damage to the house at $40,000, including $2,000 worth of newly purchased furniture. Fire departments from Arlington Heights and the Palatine Rural Fire District put out the fire.

'Teeth' sought for tax plan

by DANN GIRE

Legislation to enforce proposed real estate transfer taxes will be presented to the Northwest Municipal Conference Jan. 14.

If the legislation gains the support of the conference, the group would lobby for its passage before the Illinois General Assembly.

William Muhlenfeld, executive director of the conference, Tuesday said the legislation, drafted two weeks ago, deals with the mechanics of administering and enforcing real estate transfer taxes enacted by suburban municipalities.

"Recently, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Hoffman Estates explored the possibility of imposing a real estate transfer tax on all land sales in each municipality," Muhlenfeld said.

THE THREE villages were discouraged from adopting the tax, however, when the Cook County Recorder's office said it would not refuse to record real estate transactions without village stamps that certify a tax has been paid, he said.

The City of Chicago is the only area municipality with a real estate transfer tax and it is enforced by the county recorder's office, Muhlenfeld said.

However, an official from the county recorder's office said his office only enforces the state tax required on real estate transactions.

"What the drafted legislation would do is require the recorder's office to enforce recognition of the transfer tax," Muhlenfeld said.

John LuSasso, chief examiner of titles for the county, said there is no provision for enforcing the transfer tax and that such enforcement could not be handled by his office.

"Even for the city tax, we cannot refuse to take them (deeds) on," LuSasso said. "All we do for the city is monitor transactions and put special notes on the ones which don't have the tax."

LuSASSO SAID all the recorder's office can do is caution persons making the transfer if the tax is not paid.

"They're just going to have to police their own transfers," LuSasso said of the local municipalities.

Muhlenfeld said the cost of enforcing the tax through individual communities would be "prohibitively expensive."

The drafted legislation to be presented to the 16-member communities of the municipal conference has not been reviewed by attorneys, Muhlenfeld said.

IN A LETTER to Hoffman Estates Trustee William Cowin, Muhlenfeld said even if the drafted legislation were enaceted, it would "not be of use this coming fiscal year."

Cowin, chairman of the Hoffman Estates finance committee, sent a letter to Muhlenfeld Dec. 19 saying the Hoffman Estates Village Board has proposed placing the tax on the seller, rather than buyer of property.

He said he would meet with Cowin before the municipal conference meeting Jan. 14.

Boy found hanged in Wheeling school

A Buffalo Grove family met with tragedy Tuesday when their 11-year-old son was found dead in a washroom at Wheeling High School. Montgomery Klemmer, 11, son of Mr. and Michael B. Klemmer, 261 Selwyn Dr., Buffalo Grove, was found hanging by his neck from a cloth towel dispenser. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Holy Family Hospital at 9:30 p.m. Wheeling Police Lt. Ronald Nelson said officials have not determined whether the hanging was an accident or a suicide. He said no note was found at the scene. "We have definitely ruled out foul play. There were only five people in the school besides the boy." Nelson said the boy and his parents went to the school at 8 p.m. for a family counseling session. Montgomery excused himself to go to the washroom while his parents met with the counselor. His mother went to look for him when he failed to return after a half hour. Nelson said the boy was found in the washroom with a cloth towel around his neck and hanging from the dispenser. His mother attempted to revive him, and Wheeling Fire Dept. paramedics were called to the scene when her efforts failed, he said. The body was taken to the Cook County Morgue where cause of death will be determined.

Elk Grove coed critically beaten

A 21-year-old Elk Grove Village woman was in critical condition in a Peoria, Ill. hospital Wednesday after being severely beaten on the head with a board at Illinois State University, Normal. Carol Rofstad, daughter of Robert W. Rofstad, 512 Landmeier Rd., was found lying unconscious behind her sorority house shortly after noon Tuesday by a passing coed. Police theorize she had laid there all Monday night. The girl was taken to St. Francis Hospital, Peoria, where she was in criticial condition Wednesday in the hospital's intensive care unit. There was no evidence Miss Rofstad had been sexually assaulted, police said. Police Wednesday had not suspects in the case and had been unable to question the girl because of her unconscious condition.

Wheeling man killed in crash

A Wheeling man was killed Tuesday when his car rolled over and caught fire after crashing into a traffic light and another car on Algonquin Road west of the Tri-State Tollway in Maine Township. James Mercadante, 41, of 1641 Hunter Dr., was pronounced dead on arrival at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. State police said Mercadante's vehicle was eastbound on Algonquin Road about 5 p.m. when it struck a traffic light at Talcott Road. The car crossed the median strip and crashed head-on with a vehicle driven by Erna Ostrom, 48, of Park Ridge, police said. She was treated and released at the hospital. The car continued on after the collision, rolled over in a forest preserve area and caught fire, authorities reported. Mercadante's body was taken to the Cook County Morgue pending an autopsy and inquest.

'Teeth' asked for realty tax

The Northwest Municipal Conference will consider supporting legislation that would enforce real estate transfer taxes proposed by three Northwest suburban communities. William Muhlenfeld, executive director of the conference, said he has drafted legislation to be presented to the Illinois General Assembly. Muhlenfeld said the measure deals with the mechanics and administering of local real estate transfer taxes. Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Hoffman Estates have considered establishing real estate transfer taxes on all land sales in their communities, but have been discouraged from adopting the tax by the Cook County recorder of deeds office. The recorder's office said there is no state statute providing that his office enforce local real estate tax laws. The suburban communities have said enforcement is needed from the county because they do not have staffs large enough to check local real estate transactions for taxes. The county recorder's office is required to check all property sales in the county to make sure the transactions carry state tax seals.

Jackson rescinds primary slate

Presidential candidate Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., has decided to withdraw from the Illinois Democratic primary race for convention delegates, his state campaign chairman said. Jackson decided to release the slate of delegates pledged to him for the March 16 primary because of a decision by Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., to allow delegates favoring him to run. Previously Stevenson said he would not be a candidate for president. This week he let it be known he would not stop delegates favoring him from running in the Illinois Democratic primary. Jackson's state campaign manager Jack Guthman said in a statement, "Statewide support for a favorite-son candidacy has emerged in Illinois. Sen. Jackson has previously indicated that he would not compete for delegates in Illinois against his colleagues. As a result, Sen. Jackson will not enter delegate slates in the March 16, 1976, Illinois primary." The Stevenson decision was seen as a move to allow delegates pledged to Stevenson but loyal to Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley to attend the national convention in New York City.

O'Hare reports diminished traffic

Mad dash for flights tapers off

Santa Claus apparently had the skies over the Northwest suburbs pretty much to himself last night, according to O'Hare airport officials who reported an unusually light amount of other air traffic at the world's busiest airport.

Air controllers cleared the Jolly Old Elf for a landing anytime after the last minute rush of Christmas Eve travelers began tapering off about midmorning Wednesday.

John Carr, acting airport manager, said he was surprised at the relatively small crowds.

"It's quieter today, unusually so, and yesterday it also was quieter than we expected," he said. "Maybe everyone rushed out of here early this year or maybe they all changed their minds because of the strike."

WEDNESDAY WAS the first full day of operation for the nation's largest carrier, United Airlines. The company's fleet of planes was grounded for 16 days after ground personnel walked off the job Dec. 6 in a contract dispute. The strike caused a mad scramble among holiday travelers for a limited number of reservations on other airlines.

A United spokesman, unlike Carr, said the estimated 8,000 departures Wednesday was about average for the day before Christmas. The rest of the year, United normally handles between 16,000 and 17,000 passengers daily out of O'Hare.

"I'd say Christmas Eve is traditionally a soft day," he said, adding for those forced to work Christmas Day and planning a delayed trip home later this week, getting reservations should not be a problem.

"Most people want to be home by Christmas Eve. Sunday will be the real crush because that's when they'll all be coming back. We're forecasting 18,000 or 19,000 then."

Many firms give bonuses: survey

The holiday gift is an important tradition for American businesses, their employes and customers.

Employes receive a holiday gift or bonus from 55 per cent of the firms surveyed by Dartnell Institute of Business Research, Chicago. Turkey is on 30 per cent of the company shopping lists, followed by monetary gifts, and personal items such as jewelry, perfume, books and small appliances.

Customers rate a remembrance from about one-third of the companies responding, and almost 10 per cent indicate that prospects also are on their shopping list. For these groups personal gifts are most popular, followed by liquor, cheese boxes and turkeys. Money, of course, is forbidden in this case.

In terms of monetary value, approximately 40 per cent of the companies give employes gifts ranging from $25 and up — even over $100. These upper figures represent the Christmas bonus. Regular gift values, including turkeys, range more between $5 and $25. The majority of gifts reported for customers fall into the $5 to $25 category, although 11 per cent reported a $25 to $50 range.

Mammoth natural gas discovery indicated

Mackenzie delta reserves believed equal to 26 trillion cubic feet at Prudhoe Bay

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — New estimates of the Mackenzie delta gas reserves indicate discovery of a mammoth field in the Canadian arctic believed equal to the 26 trillion cubic feet at Prudhoe Bay on the Alaskan North Slope.

If confirmed, the two fields more than 300 miles apart would give North America its biggest discovery of natural gas and do much to ease, if not eliminate, the winter fuel shortages of the two countries.

An Alaskan petroleum expert, Homer Burrell, said the previous published estimates of the Mackenzie delta reserves had ranged from three to 11 trillion cubic feet, far below those proven at Prudhoe.

"But recent surveys by Canadian geologists and economists have convinced them that there are probably sufficient reserves in the Mackenzie delta to equal those of the Prudhoe Bay field," Burrell said.

The former state director of oil and gas said his information had come "from good Canadian authority"and was based on recent, but undivulged information out of the Canadian arctic. Burrell did not specify whether the new assessment was the result of new discoveries or a reevaluation of earlier data.

"This means," Burrell said, "that the Canadians have enough gas to build their own pipeline from the Mackenzie delta to their population centers in the south. It means it will not be necessary for them to piggyback the Mackenzie gas on to Prudhoe's."

Wildcatters and seismic teams have been working the Mackenzie delta area for years and have brought in several wells many of them close to the coast of the Beaufort Sea which forms the northern boundary of the Prudhoe discovery. Development work has lagged, however, because of two factors — the discovery of the fabulously rich North Slope deposits, plus the difficulties of getting the Canadian gas to market.

One of the two gas line proposals now before the Canadian and American authorities would take the Prudhoe gas and pipe it to the American midwest via the Mackenzie River valley. The 2,000-mile pipeline would be the most ambitious construction project ever attempted by man.

This proposal by Arctic Gas would tap the Prudhoe field, detour across the Canadian border to link up the Mackenzie delta field, and then carry the combined gas south to both the Canadian and American markets.

The counter proposal by El Paso Natural Gas would tap only the North Slope field and carry its gas across Alaska to an ice-free terminal on Prince William Sound where it would be chilled, compressed and shipped by special tankers to West Coast ports. El Paso's proposed route would follow the 798-mile Alyeska oil pipe line now under construction.

A third proposal now before the Canadian National Energy Board envisions building an all-Canadian pipeline which would tap only the Mackenzie delta and Canadian arctic supplies and feed this gas into the already-existing lines which traverse the prairie provinces. Known as the "Maple Leaf Project," it is financed by a Canadian consortium of pipeline companies called Foothill Pipelines, Ltd.

Spokesman John Elwood said the Maple Leaf Project had been handicapped by Arctic Gas claims that there was not sufficient gas in the Mackenzie delta to warrant an all-Canadian venture.

"We are confident," Elwood said, "that we can prove these claims are without merit."

The Alyeska pipeline now under construction between Prudhoe Bay and Valdez on Prince William Sound will carry only North Slope oil over its 798-mile facility.

All the gas brought to the surface when Prudhoe's 150 oil wells go into production will be pumped back into the ground and stored until completion of a gas line to move it into American kitchens and factories. Geologists estimate the re-introduced gas can be stored in the underground Prudhoe field for about five or eight years without loss.

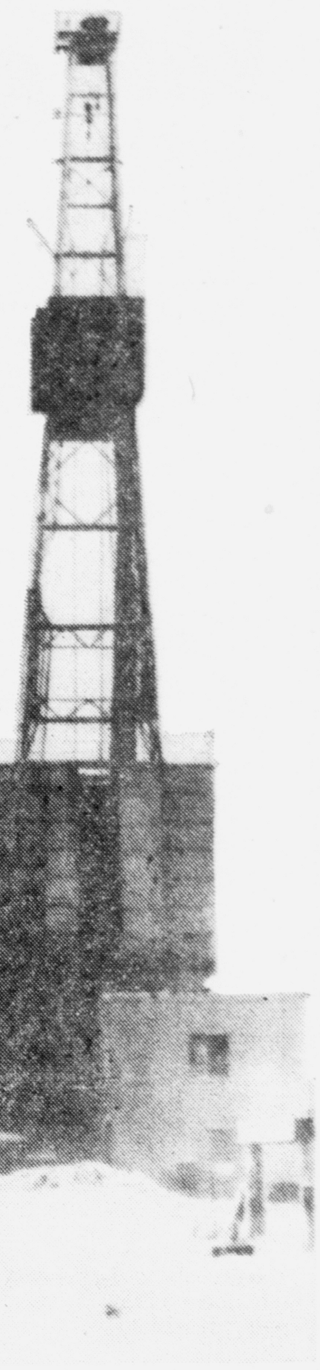
Prior to the energy crisis natural gas was the Orphan Annie of the petroleum industry, particularly the gas discovered in the far north where huge costs were required to get it to civilization.

Engineers estimate it will be eight to ten years before gas from the Prudhoe field will be burned in American homes and industries.

No pipeline construction is planned before completion of the Alyeska pipeline which is due to be finished in late 1977. Nor is the Federal Power Commission expected to rule on the Arctic Gas and El Paso proposals before late next year.

Both companies applied to the FPC for permits nearly 18 months ago, but petroleum authorities in Alaska said they doubt the Americans will make their decision until after the Canadians decide whether to grant Arctic or Foothill the required permits for the Mackenzie River valley route.

"After all," explained Burrell, "the Americans would look rather foolish if Washington gave Arctic Gas permission to build its Alaska-Canadian pipeline from Prudhoe through Canada, only to have Ottawa decide the Mackenzie delta gas should be carried by the all-Canadian Maple Leaf Project."



A drilling rig in Alaska's Prudhoe Bay stands tall as work progresses on the Alyeska oil pipeline. The by-product of oil, natural gas, will be pumped back underground and stored.

Nearly 300 miles away, meantime, geologists have announced what is believed to be a mammoth field of natural gas in the Mackenzie delta. Mackenzie may equal Prudhoe's 26 trillion cubic feet.

ON MACKINAC ISLAND, the streets on Christmas Eve are nearly deserted as the 600 year-round residents are in their homes and the handful of establishments are closed. Here, Fr. Joseph Francis, pastor of historic St. Ann's Catholic Church (1695) waves to snowmobiler parishioner. The snowmobiles are such practical vehicles for residents they are allowed on some streets.

Key U.S. embassy chiefs given extra Greek guards

ATHENS (UPI) — Authorities tightened security for U.S. embassy officials Wednesday in response to the slaying of the top CIA agent in Greece. A mystery group claiming responsibility for the murder warned of new attacks.

Richard Skeffington Welch, 46, the Central Intelligence Agency's chief of operations for Greece, was shot to death Tuesday night as he returned home from a Christmas party at the home of U.S. Ambassador Jack Kubisch.

A U.S. embassy spokesman said security for senior officers has been stepped up. A police spokesman said extra guards and police cars were put on patrol duty in suburbs where American and other foreign diplomats live.

An organization calling itself "The Union of Officers Struggling for the National Idea" claimed responsibility for the attack in anonymous calls to newspapers.

"From now on, you will hear of us often," the callers said. Officials said the group had never been heard of before and its ideology was unknown.

Three masked gunmen pulled alongside the car carrying Welch, his wife and his chauffeur. The assailants leaped out, fired three shots and sped away. The wife and chauffeur were uninjured.

"It was a very professional job," a police investigator said. "One bullet, the fatal one, we believe, got him in the stomach, the second in the chest. The third, which we found here, missed him."

The Greek government vowed to take "all necessary measures" to find the gunmen and "protect foreign diplomats from any threats."

A letter published a month ago by the English language Athens News identified Welch, who arrived in Greece last summer, as chief of CIA operations with the task of trying "to control the Caramanlis government."

The letter, written by a group of Greeks and Greek-Americans, named a number of other American diplomats in Athens as CIA agents and published their home addresses and telephone numbers.

In Washington, a source with awareness of intelligence agency activities said bitterly of Welch: "He was fingered." Another source said the disclosures made Welch a "marked man."

Intelligence sources said Welch was a brilliant officer who appeared headed for a top agency post.

Postal rate hike appeal slated

The U.S. Postal Service, which claims it is losing $200 million each month, will attempt to convince an appeals court Monday to allow an immediate increase in postal rates. U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica issued a 17-page opinion Dec. 16 which said the Postal Service cannot legally impose the rate increase until it complies with a technical proceeding required by Congress. The mail rate increases were originally scheduled to take effect Sunday.

EPA bans use of chlordane, heptachlor

The Environmental Protection Agency Wednesday ordered an immediate ban on most uses of the pesticides chlordane and heptachlor because continued use would create an "imminent hazard" of cancer for humans. Officials said the action would be effective for at least 18 months. The decision by EPA Administrator Russell E. Train, overruling earlier recommendations by an agency administrative law judge, slapped an immediate suspension on use of the chemicals for lawns, household pest control and turf.

JFK sex story called 'not a good one'

Kenneth P. O'Donnell, an aide to the late President John F. Kennedy, says the allegation linking Kennedy to Judith Campbell Exner is just a "sex story now and not a very good one at that." O'Donnell, appointments secretary of Kennedy and chief of his White House staff, was interviewed by the Boston Herald American. Mrs. Exner had said she talked with Kennedy more than 70 times on the telephone and lunched with him about 20 times in the White House. "Even Jacqueline Kennedy didn't have lunch 20 times with the President in the White House . . .," O'Donnell said.

Argentine troops hunt down guerrillas

Argentine security forces Wednesday mopped up remnants of a leftist guerrilla force that launched a bloody night attack on a key government arsenal in fighting reported to have taken more than 100 lives. The army would not say officially how many were killed in the fighting which lasted sporadically for 12 hours. Military sources said about 85 guerrillas were killed — at least 50 in the battles during the night and 35 more during the mop-up operations at dawn.

OPEC raiders planned my death: Saudi chief

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani said Wednesday the terrorists who attacked the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries headquarters in Vienna intended to kill him and Iran's interior minister, but were talked out of it by Algerian officials.

"The terrorists planned to execute me and Iranian Interior Minister Jamshid Amuzegar Tuesday morning, but Algerian intervention stopped them," Yamani told reporters.

Yamani, who was one of the OPEC oil ministers held hostage by guerrillas who stormed the organization's headquarters in Vienna, arrived in Amman from Algiers, where he and other hostages were released Tuesday by the terrorists who then surrendered.

Yamani gave Saudi Arabian King Khaled and King Hussein of Jordan a report on the Vienna raid, government sources said.

King Khaled is in Amman for talks with Hussein and other Jordanian officials on current developments in the Middle East and bilateral relations.

Yamani flew on to Saudi Arabia later Wednesday aboard the special plane that brought him to Amman from Algiers.

Venezuelan Oil Minister Valentin Hernandez Acosta, who was one of the hostages, said Tuesday in Paris that the gang leader was Carlos Illitch Ramirez Sanchez, a Venezuelan known as the "Black Panther" and wanted by Paris police for the killing of two police agents and a police informer there last July.

There were other reports, however, that the mysterious "Carlos" might have been killed last year and the gang leader was merely usurping the name.

• Vice President Nelson Rockefeller's Christmas present from his wife, Happy, will have to go back to the shop. Mrs. Rockefeller gave her husband a Japanese-made camera, but it was jammed. The vice president noticed the hotel photographer had the same kind, and asked him to take a look at it. The photographer could not fix the camera and said it would have to be repaired.

• Queen Alia, wife of King Hussein of Jordan, gave birth to a new prince late Tuesday, the Royal Court in Amman announced. The announcement said the child was named Prince Ali, after King Hussein's grandfather. Hussein and Alia have one other child, a daughter named Princess Haya. Diplomatic sources said a general amnesty was expected to mark the birth of the Prince.

Princess Anne

• Princess Anne should be second in line of succession to the British throne in keeping with the country's new sex equality laws, Robert Kilroy-Silk, a member of Parliament said this week. The Princess is now fourth in line after Prince Charles, Prince Andrew and Prince Edward, under the ancient law of succession that favors the male line. Kilroy-Silk said: "If we are making men and women equal, then the principle should apply right the way through. If age is the deciding factor in this matter, then the Princess — as the second child of the monarch — should automatically follow Prince Charles in the succession.

• Politics: President Ford Wednesday officially entered the 1976 New Hampshire presidential primary, the first of a series of battles with GOP challenger Ronald Reagan. Reagan, meanwhile, said he hopes to travel extensively in Illinois before this state's March 16 primary.

Nationwide business

Yule greetings delivered in song

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Three weeks ago, Keith Hammond, 31, got "sort of fed up with all this Christmas shopping hassle."

So he and his wife, Patricia, 23, walked into their bank and started singing:

"To all depositors and depositees, we wish you all a very merry Christmas."

Says Hammond, a onetime London casino croupier who came to San Francisco last April:

"Everybody applauded. They all seemed to enjoy it."

AND THUS WAS born the idea for a new firm called "Greetings," which delivers personal singing messages to people as far away as New York and San Diego.

The Hammonds and a friend, Paul Wolk, 28, formerly of Phoenix, Ariz., placed a newspaper ad for standby messengers and landed 77 from the San Francisco area.

Most deliver the messages by bicycle. About a dozen have cars. And if the message has to be sent far away and no cars are available, the Hammonds and Wolk deliver it themselves.

People who want to send a singing message through Greetings call up the phone number listed in its newspaper ads and explain when, where and to whom they want it delivered. Cost: $10.

HAMMOND, who lived in Miami before coming to San Francisco, said the only rule is that all messages must be affectionate or respectful. Practical jokes are out.

"One man wanted to know if we'd throw a custary pie in someone's face," he said. "We told him if he wanted it thrown in his own face, okay, but otherwise no."

Said Hammond: "Some people just want to say 'I love you' but they're a little bit embarrassed to express themselves over the phone, so we try to help them compose what they want to say."

He recalled one man who "wanted to send best wishes to his fiancee who was leaving her place at 7 a.m. for a job interview. So our messenger showed up at 7 as she left. The girl loved it. And she got the job, too."

THEN THERE was a Concord, Calif., wife who hid some messengers in the kitchen so they could burst in on her husband when he came home.

After the greeting, "they embraced," said Hammond. "They were the happiest couple in the world."

Hammond, on leave from his regular job as a theater floor manager, said: "We've received a very warm reception so far. People really seem to enjoy the idea.

"And after these holidays there's Valentine's and Mother's Day coming up."

After 72 years he wouldn't take a million for her

KELL, Ill. (UPI) — John T. Spangler remembers Christmas Day 72 years ago very well.

"It was warm and the roads were muddy. Later that night came a real blizzard," said Spangler.

On the spring-like day before the blizzard blew in, Spangler and Nona Watson were married.

They will observe Christmas day and their 72nd wedding anniversary Thursday at the home of their son, Gale, in the Kell area, southeast of Salem in Marion County.

"WE USUALLY make the same presents work for Christmas and our anniversary," said Spangler, a retired farmer who will be 96 next Jan. 15. His wife will be 91 next July 13.

"If we make it to our 75th anniversary, I'm going to buy her a diamond ring for Christmas," said Spangler.

"I had to take my driver's license exam last week and passed everything," said Spangler. "Won't have to take another one until I'm 99."

"We drove down to Centralia Tuesday," he said.

"There have been so many changes, it's hard for me to believe," said Spangler, a retired farmer. "I can remember my father shooting a wild turkey off the horse lot fence. We ate turkey for awhile."

THE SPANGLERS have three sons, Gale and Stanley, of the Kell area, and Ted, of San Diego, Calif.

The main thing for young people getting married to remember is that "they should be suited for each other."

"My wife and I must be suited for each other after 72 years, but I sometimes tell her that's a long time to live with one woman," Spangler said with a laugh.

"I wouldn't take a million dollars for her."

IRS vows a break for all taxpayers

Cheer up, taxpayers. The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) said everyone who pays income tax this year has at least one tax break coming.

The break is the personal exemption tax credit. Effective for only 1975, the credit amounts to $30 for each regular exemption to which the taxpayer is entitled. However, individuals who claim additional exemptions because they are blind or are 65 years old or over, may only claim one $30 credit for themselves.

How does the credit work? Take a family with three children, for instance, Mr. and Mrs. Brown. They file a joint return. When completing their return, the Browns will count two exemptions for themselves, and one for each of their children, for a total of five exemptions. They will multiply the $30 credit per exemption by five to come up with the $150 total credit that they'll write on the front of their tax return and subtract from their tax.

The new credit does not affect the $750 allowed for each exemption when figuring taxable income. For example, the Browns will still multiply the $750 by five and subtract $3,750 from their income.

There's information on the personal exemption tax credit in the instructions for both the 1040 and 1040A tax packages.

Taxpayers who have questions about the personal exemption tax credit or other matters can visit local IRS offices or call toll free 800-972-5400.

Copies of free IRS publications may be obtained by using the order blank contained in your tax package.

Stars recall worst Yuletide presents

Don't look a gift mule in the mouth

by PATRICK J. KILLEN
United Press International

There he was, up to his ankles in mud on a western Pacific island during World War II and still no Christmas present, recalled Kent King of Mankato, Minn.

"Others had received homebaked bread, bottles of wine, cookies, candy, etc. Finally my present came . . . a shoe shine kit," King said. "We had brown shoes under all that mold, mud and water.

"The kit had black polish."

King's description of his worst Christmas present started a survey by UPI of others who had gift troubles on Dec. 25. The list of worst presents included a live donkey, a stumbling Santa and a case of chickenpox.

BOB HOPE SAID his worst Christmas present was "a necktie Bing Crosby gave me that he'd worn at Valley Forge." Hope added his best present was "the peace that finally came to Vietnam."

Television's Carol Burnett said her worst was "a case of chickenpox I got on Christmas Eve when I was 9."

Sec. of Agriculture Earl Butz said "something less than best" was the religious song book which he and his 6-year-old brother got one Christmas when they expected air rifles.

"In retrospect, I think we got the right present," said Butz, "but it really wasn't very exciting that Christmas."

"When I was a tot I sat waiting for Santa to come in the front door," actor-author David Niven recalled. "When he arrived he reeked of alcohol and fell flat on his face. His beard came off and it was my father."

NIVEN SAID his best present was "my demobilization papers on Christmas, 1945, after 6½ years in the British Army."

Baseball's Bill Veeck said his best Christmas gift was "right now, to have all my kids home and to be employed again as owner-operator of the Chicago White Sox." His worst, he said, was in the Pacific during the war when "I had a K-ration for Christmas dinner."

Phyllis Diller said her worst was "a snake sent to me by a smart-alec friend with a note that read, 'Do-it-yourself belt kit'. It included a buckle."

Stanley Marcus of the Neiman-Marcus store in Dallas said his worst Christmas gift was a live donkey he received from his children some years ago. Donkeys are easier to acquire than dispose of, he said, and he finally had to pay someone to cart if off.

Always the salesman, Marcus noted this year's N-M Christmas catalogue features a Bicentennial special for the late shopper — autographed letters from George and Martha Washington, $9,500 the set.

Their Christmas has been more than returned

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Someone stole Christmas from the Wendling family. But hundreds of sympathetic persons have more than returned it.

Last week, Mr. and Mrs. John Wendling, both physically disabled, discovered that all the Christmas presents they had purchased for their four children had been stolen from the storage room in their apartment building.

The Wendlings are dependent on government assistance checks. There is no more money coming into the home until after New Year's Day.

"I don't know what we can do," said Betty Wendling. But other persons knew what to do.

IMMEDIATELY AFTER the appearance of a local newspaper story and a nationally-distributed UPI article about the theft, gifts from around town and across the country began pouring into the family's home.

Mrs. Wendling, who has a heart condition and an arthritic hip and must use a wheelchair to get around, cried when the gifts began arriving.

"I didn't inow things like this could happen," she said. "It has brought back my belief in people."

Mrs. Wendling said she wanted to send thank you notes, but many of the gifts arrived anonymously.

"SO, I'M SAYING a prayer for each and every person," she said.

Gifts included clothing, food, gift certificates for department stores and even cash.

"I am truly sorry that I can't give more," said Mrs. Gwendolyn Krebs of Middletown, Pa., who sent the Wendlings a check for $10 after reading about the theft in her local paper.

The Wendlings received so many gifts, in fact, that they decided to give some of the items to local charities that provide Christmas presents for the needy.

Three railroads offer to buy Wisconsin line

The Chicago and North Western Ry., Milwaukee Road and Soo Line railroads have announced a plan to acquire and operate part of the Green Bay & Western R.R. in Wisconsin.

The plan is an alternative to a proposal by Burlington Northern R.R. to purchase securities of the GB&W in October 1974.

The plan includes an offer to acquire the GB&W and distribute its properties among the three companies and to service major industries served by the GB&W while disposing of lines that carry an insignificant traffic volume.

The GB&W line extends across Wisconsin from Winona, Minn., to Kawaunee on Lake Michigan. Hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission will start Jan. 12.

GRANDPA GETS A special gift from his grand-daughter and her classmates. Brigitte Bannick and the other fifth graders in Anne Snodgrass' class at Clearmont School, Elk Grove Village, gave a Christmas party with all the trimmings for their grandparents and a few of their friends. Brigitte invited her grandfather, Joseph Bannick, to be her guest.

Clearmont pupils celebrate with oldsters

Kids share the joy of Christmas

Christmas is a time for giving.

But many youngsters today forget the giving and sharing of Christmas. It's their time of year to ask Santa for all those toys and goodies.

Students at Clearmont School in Elk Grove Village decided they would show the true colors of Christmas. The fifth graders in Ann Snodgrass' class invited their grandpas, grandmas, aunts and uncles to their holiday party Friday.

"The boys and girls were talking about the meaning of Christmas and decided it was a time of sharing," said Mrs. Snodgrass. "They decided to share their holiday with people they usually don't do things with."

INSTEAD OF HAVING the traditional Christmas party on the last day before winter break, the youngsters planned a special party for the older folks they knew. The traditional grab-bag, to which each youngster would being a present and "grab" for one in the sack, was dropped. Students pooled the money they would have spent on those presents to buy goodies for their guests and little remembrances for the holiday season.

About half of the class scouted out a relative, neighbor or family friend to bring to the party. To make sure every youngster had a "guest," Mrs. Snodgrass also invited some folks from St. Julien Eymard Catholic Church's senior citizens group.

To break the jitters of meeting new people, the youngsters had a grab session to start the party off. The Christmas cookies and punch were all there — and specially for their guests, they had bingo boards ready for action.

So with smiles galore and hearts full of giving, these youngsters learned to share the true spirit of Christmas.

$10 tutorial aid increase OKd for GI Bill vets

The Veterans Administration has announced a $10 increase in its monthly tutorial assistance program.

Any of the 1.15 million veterans and servicemen enrolled in college under the GI Bill are eligible for the assistance.

The VA will pay up to $60 a month for tutorial help, and the payment is not charged against the veteran's basic educational entitlement.

The tutorial benefits also are available to widows, wives and children studying under the VA's program for dependents.

Veterans and servicemen studying beyond secondary school at least half-time are eligible for tutorial assistance if they have a deficiency in a required subject, according to VA guidelines.

The agency advised eligible GI Bill students to complete a VA application and have it certified by the institution.

A few moments of watching TV in the USO lounge during a layover.

USO is more than a cup of coffee and a papperback

by STIRLING MORITA

Tears came to Dorothy Wade's eyes, and she quickly went to the back portion of the USO lounge at O'Hare Airport.

The USO volunteer had been talking to a serviceman who was returning from South Vietnam with an American flag to give to the parents of a buddy killed in action. The buddy was buried the same day he was supposed to get married. The soldier asked her to hold it for him. That was too much.

"It was heartbreaking. I'm not really a good volunteer. I had to go to the backroom and cry," Mrs. Wade, Northbrook, recalled.

This is the kind of friendly sympathy traveling servicemen will receive this Christmas season. Whether it be a two-hour wait for a flight or an overnight stay because of a snowstorm, the glass enclosure in Terminal 2 will be open to supply recreation, refreshments and just plain good company.

THE WEEKENDS before Christmas and after New Year's Day, the lounge will be bustling with around-the-clock service, said Dorothy Conley, lounge director.

"When other people are home having Christmas, there's someone here for Christmas for people who may not get home," she said.

The holiday season promises to be as busy as in the past with many servicemen stopping over in Chicago or recruits from Great Lakes Naval Station or from Chanute Air Force Base in Rantoul headed for home.

Christmastime is different than other times. Most of the usual traffic through the lounge is servicemen on emergency leave to visit a sick family member or attend a funeral. But during Christmas, everyone is going home.

MRS. CONLEY POINTED out some of the most poignant scenes are families greeting long-gone husbands or sons or a farewell after a brief leave.

Besides the free cups of coffee or punch, donuts, the color television set, paperback books, games, writing materials, the lounge offers something else — a "sense of camaraderie," Mrs. Conley said. Instead of feeling lonely in a strange place, the servicemen can go to the lounge and rap with each other about their branch of the armed services.

"Most of the boys are so appreciative. They feel a little different than sitting out in the airport. Here they can talk," Mrs. Conley said.

Some just come in to chat, grab a quick cup of coffee and then hurry off for their flights.

THE O'HARE LOUNGE is one of the busiest airport lounges in the United Service Organization. In 1974, about 60,000 servicemen went through the lounge, and not all of them sign in, she said.

The lounge, part of the organization supported by American donations, doles out countless refreshments. The file cabinets behind Mrs. Conley's desk do not contain paperwork. Instead, they're storehouses of coffee, foodstuffs, shaving gear and other items.

In a month, the lounge will give out 3,000 cups of coffee, 5,000 cups of punch, 1,000 donuts, 800 sweet rolls, 130 pounds of cookies, 35 layer cakes and 40 pounds of cold cuts.

Mrs. Conley said thanks to veterans', civic and commercial groups, about 25 per cent of the lounge's $30,000 yearly budget is donated.

ONE OF THE BUSIEST days of the year saw 1,000 servicemen use the facility in 12 hours, more than one a minute. Mrs. Conley explained that for a while a combination of the pullout in South Vietnam and the economic crunch had "wiped the USO out of a lot of minds."

She added that on April 2 a snowstorm stranded many servicemen at O'Hare, and the lounge stayed open. Many of them tucked their heads on duffel bags and slept on the floor.

Or there was the time the Army, for the first time ever, granted home Chrstmas leaves for the men in Vietnam. A chartered flight was supposed to come in during Christmas Eve, and a large welcome was planned, but instead, it arrived about 3 a.m. Christmas morning. Mrs. Conley got a call, and she dragged her only volunteer at th time, her sister, to the airport to take care of the arrivals.

She said the time the airport was fogged in for three days, servicemen, apparent strangers to each other, had created a family atmosphere "when they knew they'd never see each other again."

Citing the heavy snowstorm on Thanksgiving eve, Mrs. Conley said, "It always works out. A snowstorm comes on an eve of a holiday."

White Yuletide forecast for nation

Christians celebrate Jesus' birth

by United Press International

Christians around the world observe the birth of Jesus Christ today in the most popular commemoration of the church year — Christmas.

First suppressed in the United States by the Puritans because of the holiday's pagan origins, Christmas celebrations have become increasingly popular — and commercialized.

Dec. 25 was the date of a pagan festival in Rome, chosen in A.D. 274 to celebrate the winter solstice. Christmas on Dec. 25 is first known to have been celebrated in Rome in the second quarter of the 4th Century.

IN JEROME, IDAHO, a Bible reader offered $1,000 to anyone who can show her a Bible verse substantiating the birth of Christ on Dec. 25. Marian Slape said she has the money but is sure she will not have to pay it. She said she has read the Bible from cover to cover but has found no reference to the exact date of Christ's birth.

Christmas is a traditional time to visit with family and friends, to exchange gifts and to feast.

A United Airlines strike had threatened to keep many Americans at home, but the strike was settled and full service was restored for Christmas Eve travel.

Much of the nation will have a hoped-for white Christmas. The National Weather Service said snow will fall for Christmas from the central Great Lakes to the Ohio River Valley and west to central Missouri, and also in southwest Wyoming.

SNOW IS ALREADY on the ground from southern New York state to Lake Erie past Milwaukee and Minnesota into the Rocky Mountains.

In Bethlehem, in Israeli-occupied Jordan, the hilltop Judean village where Jesus Christ was born, the spirit of Christmas was hardly recognizable. There were Christmas wreaths and carved olive wood likenesses of the Christ child and the three wise men. And a gaily decorated Christmas tree sparkles outside the Israeli police station on manger square.

But you also find a lot of Israeli security guards carrying submachine guns on their rounds.

In Los Angeles, a lawyer contended lighting of the city hall tower in the form of a cross is illegal because it violates constitutional provisions for separation of church and state. A judge rejected an immediate petition, but set a hearing for Jan. 16 — well after the Christmas season.

IN CINCINNATI, Christmas returned to the Wendling family. Last week, Mr. and Mrs. John Wendling, both physically disabled, discovered all the Christmas presents they had purchased for their four children had been stolen from the storage room in their apartment building.

When the story got out, gifts from around town and across the country — many of them anonymous — began pouring into the family's home.

The Wendlings received so many gifts they decided to give some to charities for the needy.

Many hit nation's roads to be home for holiday

'Twas the night before Christmas and across the nation, motorists left for their Christmas vacation.

The Christmas traffic rush began in earnest Wednesday. Motorists clogged highways to share gifts and dinners with family and friends.

The National Safety Council estimated that between 440 and 500 persons could die in traffic accidents on the nation's roadways between 6 p.m. Wednesday and midnight Sunday.

The council also estimated 19,000 to 22,000 persons would suffer disabling injuries in holiday mishaps.

POLICE PUT on extra patrols in most states in efforts to keep holiday auto travel as safe as possible and to enforce the national 55-mile-per-hour speed limit on highways.

The white Christmas of New England proved hazardous to motorists. Up to 1½ feet of snow from two weekend storms covered the ground, and a last flurry of snow Tuesday left highways slippery and touched off a flurry of auto accidents.

A storm over the Rockies touched off travelers' advisories or heavy snow warnings today for portions of New Mexico, Arizona and Texas.

Auto clubs reported Christmas motorists should have no trouble finding adequate supplies of gasoline.

While motorists packed up cars and took to the highways, other travelers jammed airports for flights home. The air travel load, although heavy, was not as unbearable as it had been during the two-week strike against United Airlines.

UNITED RESUMED full operations today, easing the air travel burden, but a strike by National Airlines — a major carrier to Florida — caused some difficulties with flights to the sunshine state.

Some half million tourists shunned the traditional white Christmas in snowy areas and headed for the usually warm beaches of Florida. They may have been disappointed. Cold weather engulfed much of the state with temperatures near or below freezing in the northern and central areas and chilly weather clearing the beaches as far south as Miami.

Amtrak, the national rail passenger service, reported heavy traffic but said many major routes still had space available for travelers.

An Amtrak spokesman said reservations were 26 per cent over last year's volume but that chances of getting a seat on most routes remained good.

(United Press International)

Troops watch over Yule pilgrims

BETHLEHEM, Israeli-Occupied Jordan (UPI) — Thousands of pilgrims, the most in nine years, converged on this Judean hilltop town Wednesday to observe Christmas in the traditional birthplace of Jesus Christ under the eyes of hundreds of troops.

The Latin Patriarch, Msgr. Giacomo Beltritti, officially began the religious observance of Christmas with his entrance into the town from the Jaffa Gate in nearby Jerusalem at the head of a column of hundreds of school boys marching in colorful bands.

Beltritti was met by the Latin Vested Procession from the Basilica of the Church of the Nativity and was given a scarlet cloak and hat. Monks and choir boys in white lace over their black cloaks surrounded him.

He entered adjacent St. Catherine's, a Roman Catholic church, for the beginning of prayers that will culminate with midnight mass.

Hundreds of combat-ready soldiers lined the march route and the roofs above it, even using church roofs as vantage points to watch the marchers and tourists streaming into the town. The security precautions appeared more intense than last year.

Armed soldiers checked all vehicles and persons entering the town, which was closed to ordinary traffic. Only visitors with special government permits were allowed in.

Dow ahead 5.51 points

U.S. trade surplus spurs market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Reports of a record U.S. foreign trade surplus encouraged investors to push prices broadly higher early Wednesday in moderately active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Shortly before 11 a.m., the Dow Jones industrial average, a 5.12-point winner Tuesday, was ahead 5.51 points to 849.26. Advances led declines, 880 to 276 among the 1,614 issues crossing the tape.

Turnover during the first two hours amounted to about 6,800,000 shares, compared with 6,720,000 traded during the same period Tuesday. The NYSE high-speed transaction tape ran two minutes late in the first half hour.

THE NYSE closed at 1 p.m. for the Christmas holiday. Final quotes were not available at Herald press time.

The Commerce Dept. buoyed investor sentiment by reporting the nation's $1.11 billion November foreign trade surplus was the 10th consecutive advance and was a record for that month. The $10.61 billion surplus through November already has surpassed the record $7.08 billion surplus recorded in 1964.

UAL Inc., parent of United Airlines, gained ½ to 27, Delta ¾ to 36¼, American 3/8 to 9-1/8, Northwest Orient 3/8 to 11-1/8 and Braniff 3/8 to 8¾.

American Telephone & Telegraph led the Big Board actives, up 1/8 to 50-5/8 on 123,500 shares, including a block of 100,000 shares at 50-3/8. Polaroid followed, up 1/8 to 30-5/8 on 111,500 shares. Communications Satellite was third, up 7/8 to 25½ on 95,000 shares.

OILS AND RELATED issues were higher. Getty Oil, Halliburton, Schlumberger and Hughes Tool were point-sized gainers. Ohio Standard added ¾ to 69¾ and Exxon 5/8 to 87½.

Prices were higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Syntex led the Amex actives, up 1/8 to 30¾ on 15,400 shares. New England Nuclear followed, off ½ to 22½ on 15,200 shares. Systems Engineering was third, unchanged at 5¼ on 9,800 shares.

Mother seeks to get son out of Russia

by United Press International

"Give me your tired, your poor.

Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,

The wretched refuse of your teeming shore."

The three women, members of Chicago Action for Soviet Jewry, felt embarrassed reciting the poem etched on the Statue of Liberty while they were riding in a taxi through Washington D.C., recently.

Their apprehensions subsided when they saw the pleasure in the face of Mrs. Lubov Dinenzon, a Soviet emigrant who is trying to get her eldest son out of Russia.

"The kind of sentiment we have discarded as cornball we forgot still means a lot to the people who are still coming to this country," group chairman Mrs. Lorel Pollack said.

MRS. DINENZON, once a criminal lawyer in the Soviet Union, and one of her sons, Viktor Aronovich, left their country for the United States in May 1973. They arrived in Chicago after a brief stop in Israel.

But the eldest son, Felix, was denied a visa. Soviet officials said his job as a construction engineer allowed him access to classified information, Mrs. Pollack said.

Soviet authorities threatened to cancel Viktor's visa and cause him harm if Mrs. Dinenzon refused to leave without him, she said.

Since their emigration, Mrs. Dinenzon and Viktor have tried unsuccessfully to obtain a visa for Felix, who subsequently lost his job and now lives in Leningrad.

They last heard from Felix Sept. 5, the night before Rosh Hashana, when he told them his visa had again been denied. Soviet authorities told Felix he would have to wait one year from the date of his last visa application before he could apply again.

VIKTOR, his mother, Mrs. Pollack and two other members of the organization traveled to Washington Nov. 10 to petition the government to help them obtain a visa for Felix.

"It was a very interesting trip," Mrs. Pollack said. "Their reaction to the physical nature of the city alone. We drove past the Lincoln Memorial, the Jefferson Memorial, the Washington Monument.

"She, Mrs. Dinenzon asked us if they were named after past presidents who had done something great for the people. When we said yes, she said, 'What have the rulers of Russia left behind but the graves'?

"We learned a lot. In gentle ways they reminded us of our own system which we take for granted. We're all so cool. Well, they blew our cool. They reminded us of what a precious thing we have here."

Mrs. Dinenzon met personally with Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., and with aides of Senators Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., Charles Percy, R-Ill., and Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and Rep. Sidney R. Yates, D-Ill., Mrs. Pollack said.

"Our people opened their offices," she said, "if the Soviets would honor detente and respond it would mean a lot."

THE STATE Dept. said it would take the issue of Felix' emigration "directly to Moscow," Mrs. Pollack said.

The group joined the Washington Committee for Soviet Jewry in a daily silent vigil in front of the Soviet embassy.

"The State Dept. continues to stay in touch, but it is very painful to discuss it with her, Mrs. Dinenzon," Mrs. Pollack said. "We try to put it as optimistically as possible. I hope our country never relaxes on the issues of human rights.

"A small thing turned into a very beautiful thing."

Rep. Skinner to object to C&NW fare increase

When the Illinois Commerce Commission launches hearings Jan. 8 on the Chicago and North Western Transportation Co. fare increase proposal, State Rep. Cal Skinner Jr., R-Crystal Lake, will file a request to be an objector in the case.

The North Western seeks an initial 15 per cent fare hike Jan. 1 and an additional 22.5 per cent increase April 1. The railway asked for the commuter fare boost following its failure to reach a satisfactory service agreement purchase with the Regional Transportation Authority.

SKINNER CITED the railway donation of $31,615 to the RTA Citizen Committee for Better Transportation, and the North Western efforts to support the RTA in the suburbs. "The Chicago and North Western got everything it wanted," he said, criticizing the "gall" of the railway officials.

Robert Walner, the ICC hearing examiner on th eNorth Western case, said the Jan. 8 hearing will start at 10 a.m. at the State of Illinois Building, Chicago. "No action will be taken until after a number of hearings have been held," Walner said.

The commission can consider the fare increase bid for 11 months, Walner said. "A ballpark guess" of the earliest possible commission decision date is 60 to 90 days following the start of hearings, he said. If the North Western signs a purchase of service agreement with the RTA, the case will be dropped because the commission would lose jurisdiction of railway fares.

Sex workshop for Retarded slated

A trend toward community living for retarded persons has prompted two Chicago hospitals to sponsor a workshop on sexuality and sex education for the developmentally disabled Jan. 9-10.

Schwab Rehabilitation Hospital and Mt. Sinai Hospital Medical Center, where the workshop will be held, are cosponsors of the program.

"The mentally retarded are sexual beings and will find ways to express their sexuality," said Richard J. McCauley, coordinator of the workshop. "The purpose of the workshop is to help parents and professionals teach the retarded to express their sexuality in responsible ways."

The workshop features a filmed documentary on sexuality and the retarded. Other activities include exercises in sex education vocabulary, a discussion of attitudes and feelings about sex, a slide show on sexuality and role playing to give participants practice in teaching retarded children about sex.

And a very merry Christmas from the entire staff of The Herald!

The way we see it

The Christmas message endures

It is a testament to the enduring character of Christmas that while the outward trappings — and even the more meaningful legends — evolve over the years, the basic messages of the holiday remain unchanged.

Consider how the legends have changed. For example, the jolly figure of Santa Claus descends from the North Pole with a sack of toys for the children of the world.

History shows us that Santa has gone by many names, such as Father Christmas, le Pere Noel, Kriss Kringle and the still-familiar St. Nicholas.

Sometimes he's been depicted in regal purple and gold silks, sometimes in a brown-hooded monk-like robe. A sleigh has not always been his means of transportation; history has shown him on a white horse or in a cart pulled by goats.

But Santa isn't the only Christmas symbol that's changed over the years. If the signers of the Declaration of Independence visited us today, they'd be surprised by our celebration of Christmas, for the entire celebration has changed as our nation has matured.

Two-hundred years ago, Christmas was a spartan affair, for there was little accumulated tradition and few material goods to go around.

Today, our Christmas season begins around Thanksgiving. The holiday has become a national riot of gift-giving and celebration, a festival that mixes the secular and the sacred on a day which is remembered fondly by both young and old.

As we consider how the traditions have evolved, it is clear that the central message has changed very little since the first Christmas in Bethlehem nearly 2,000 ysars ago.

It rings out as clearly as church bells: the Christ child is born, and there is hope for our ragged world. Let us gather together, as a family, as a people, as a nation and as a world, and rejoice!

The customs and the practices of the season will always change, much as the drifting snow changes the shape of our familiar countryside. But faith and belief endure and come alive, as always, on this most joyous of all days of the year.

Merry Christmas!

They need your help

For almost 70 years, Christmas Seals have led the fight against lung disease, which is one of the cruelest killers known. Christmas Seal contributions help fight such killers as emphysema, chronic bronchitis and asthma, which are among the most disabling of all human ailments.

The program provides a variety of services to help eliminate these ailments. These include supporting lung disease education programs, supplying special breathing aids, supporting medical research and maintaining a referral service for persons with breathing problems.

However, the Chicago Lung Assn. faces serious cutbacks unless it can meet its $1 million goal. Early in December, the Christmas seal organization reported it was only a little over half-way towards meeting that goal.

Only if many more contribute will the program continue to serve all of us. Send what you can to Christmas Seals, 1440 W. Washington St., Chicago 60607.

The almanac

(by United Press International)

Today is Thursday, Dec. 25, the 359th day of 1975, with six to follow. This is Christmas Day.

The moon is in its last quarter.

The morning stars are Venus and Saturn.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Capricorn.

American singer Tony Martin was born Dec. 25, 1913.

On this day in history:

• Between 4 B.C. and 4 A.D. Jesus Christ was born in Bethlehem. Early calendar miscalculations make it impossible to pinpoint the exact year.

• In 1818, the first Christmas carol was sung at Oberndorf, Austria. It was "Silent Night, Holy Night" composed by organist Franz Gruber and Father Joseph Mohr.

• In 1971, more than 160 persons died in Seoul, South Korea, in history's worst hotel fire.

• In 1974, Cyclone Tracy, packing 160-mile-an-hour winds, devastated Darwin, Australia, killing more than 40 persons.

A thought for the day: English author Thomas Tusser said, "At Christmas play and make good cheer, for Christmas comes but once a year."

Assassination probe stance appreciated

I wish to praise your editorial of Dec. 8 calling for a new investigation into the assassination of President Kennedy.

Overwhelming evidence clearly indicates that a conspiracy existed to kill the President, and that Lee Harvey Oswald may have never even fired a gun on Nov. 22, 1963.

Your support on this issue may help to generate more interest on the subject which could force a reopening of the investigation.

QUEBEC, Dec. 25 — Both sides in the struggle for the beseiged city spent a quiet Christmas day although one American noted there was some small arms fire and cannon shot from the Quebec garrison which did no damage.

Next to Arab border

U.S.—Israeli family tells about living with fear

Editor's Note: Herb Kamm, associate editor of The Cleveland Press, and his wife, Phyllis, returned recently from a reporting tour of Israel and Egypt. Following is one of their reports.

BY PHYLLIS AND HERB KAMM

METULLA, Israel — What is it like to live with murder as your "neighbor," as it is for thousands of families in Israel who have taken up homes within shouting distance of Arab borders?

Suppose you are an American who pulled up roots and made Israel your home.

What is it like?

Let two young transplanted Americans tell you.

Even while the streets of Beirut, Lebanon, 50 miles northwest of this village, are exploding with internecine warfare, Palestinian terrorists continue their incursions across the border into Israel.

THE DANGER is always there. The sublimated fear lurks in the shadows of the mind, like the terrorists slinking into the darkness of the nearby orchards hoping to strike at the villagers.

"I don't want to say it's something you get used to. But it's not the uppermost thing in everybody's minds. You know, everybody sort of lives their lives. When I go up to the orchards I'm on the road next to the border fence. I take a firearm with me. Maybe the chances are one in a million something might happen. But if there is that chance, you take the gun."

Sandy-haired Eric Jacobs, 29, soft-spoken, pragmatic, bachelor's degree in philosophy, born and raised in Boulder, Colo. with little Jewish training and no Zionist inclinations, shrugged, accepting the reality facing his family and their neighbors in Metulla. Metulla is an agricultural village of a few hundred families, the northernmost point of Israel nestled against the Lebanese border.

His dark-haired wife Rivka, 30, chubby, pleasant faced, master's degree in English literature, comes from a traditional Jewish home in Utica, N.Y. They met as students at the University of Rochester. They now live with their two small children in a snug little house some 100 yards from the border of Lebanon, beyond which Arab terrorists wait for the cance to strike.

ERIC AND RIVKA spoke to us in their den. It is a booklined room, comfortable, cozy. But there are no windows and the outer walls are encased in eight inches of concrete — an extra inch or so more on the roof.

This is the security room, a part of every house near the border of an Arab country. It is the room where the children sleep and where Rivka joins them to comfort them and allay their fears on nights when Eric is on border patrol and there is a terrorist alert, or the boom of Israeli artillery is frighteningly amplified by the surrounding hills of Lebanon and Israel. It is a room built to withstand shelling from across the border.

The young mother was asked about the psychological impact of the constant tension on the children, Yael, 4, a snubnosed, pigtailed, shy little girl, and Joshua, 5, alert and eager.

"If you raise your children in a dangerous city, they've got in some way to have some fear of people, or some fear of being alone or walking by themselves," said Rivka. "Our kids fears are not an ydeep psychological thing. They know what they're afraid of. When the shooting starts they're afraid and that's all there is to it.

"AND WE DO the best we can to cope with it. I think it's bad psychology to grab your kids and run. I think it's a bad education for the children and I think it's silly. Our approach is to try to make them accept it and get used to it. But of course you never get used to it."

But they do accept it and often laugh about it. When we asked how the alert is sounded, Rivka chuckled and said the neighbors get out and yell as loud as they can, " 'Hey, Eric, Eric.' You can see it's a very sophisticated system." And one night when terrorists were nearby, a member of the patrol called reassuringly to her nieghbor: "Don't worry, Ora. It's only terrorists."

And little Joshua haltingly recalls, with wide eyes, the night a Katusha (Russian-made) rocket fell in the town. He tries to tell the story but never finishes. The wide blue eyes finish it for him.

Like their neighbors — some newcomers like themselves, others third and fourth generation in Metulla — the Jacobs are always mindful of the dangers but there is a healthy, lightheartedness about their lives as Israelis, an eagerness to face the challenges head on.

They enjoy their jobs as teachers and fruit farmers. Eric works at a high school in Kiryat Shmona nine miles away, the target of a terrorist attack last year. Rivka teaches at a grade school in a village close by. They are infused with a sense of participation in a vital society.

THEY HAVE THEIR comfortable, modern home purchased at a minimal cost under the program for new settlers. They also have 10 dunams (2.5 acres) of apple, plum and peach orchards that were planted by the Jewish Agency which sends someone to guide the tyro farmers, who would never get this type of opportunity in the States.

The is the Jacobs' fourth year in Metulla, their seventh in Israel. It is the first year their orchards produced a salable crop — 20 tons of fruit. Eventually these 2.5 acres will be capable of producing 75 to 100 tons of fruit a year.

They came because one very cold January morning in upstate New York Eric asked Rivka: "What the hell are we doing here?" They had more or less mapped out their lives to get PhDs, to be teachers, to buy a house, etc., etc. "We looked at each other," Eric told us, "and decided we didn't want it."

It's obvious they found what they want — or almost. They hope that some day, for both Arab and Jew, the border will be open and free as it was from the earliest settlement in 1896 until the 1967 war, when relationships were good, when farmers on both sides of the border exchanged agricultural know how and family chit-chat in each other's homes.

Television in Review

CBS must have been good; takes top 14

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — 'Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the house, not a creature was stirring, not even Petrocelli.

Everybody in television land had his own little stocking stuffer in mind from the big guy in the red suit — no, no, not Cannon — Claus, Santa Claus.

Some already have their gifts, others look like their requests are sticking in a snowdrift somewhere south of the North Pole, but then nobody's perfect — not even the postal service. Or perhaps it's a communications problem.

CBS GOT ITS gift a little early when the Nielsen rating showed the network dominating the first 14 slots, from "All In the Family" in top spot down to "The Jeffersons" ranking 14th.

From 15th to 20th place, 15th went to NBC's "Little House on the Prairie," then came ABC's "Starsky and Hutch," "Baretta" and "Welcome Back, Kotter," and back to a couple more CBS entries.

That should give everybody an idea what NBC and ABC want to find under their trees — and it isn't a transistor radio.

It's hard to figure out what to give Archie Bunker for Christmas — what do you give a chap with a 50 per cent share of the audience? Santa came through for M-A-S-H in December by shifting the show back to Tuesday, where it does very nicely — fifth place this week. Last fall a scheduler who must have been mortally offended by something Alan Alda said — or was it Hotlips? — shifted the show over to Fridays and its ratings nosedived.

THE NEW NORMAN Lear show on CBS, "One Day At a Time," got its early gift in the schedule break that gave it M-A-S-H for a lead-in, although the jump from Korea to Indianapolis is abrupt. Better Indianapolis than another view of Southern California, which may be a nice place to live but sure has been overworked as a television locale.

Perhaps one thing the audience wants is a change of scene.

Of the top shows on television this week, not counting specials and variety formats, look how many are outside the Los Angeles area:

Archie Bunker is a New Yorker; Kojak works out of Manhattan South, and Barney Miller also is a New York City cop; "M-A-S-H" goes to Korea; Bob Newhart hails from Chicago; Mary Tyler Moore shifts to Minneapolis; "One Day at a Time," Indianapolis; "The Waltons," rural West Virginia; the Jeffersons are New Yorkers; then there's "The Streets of San Francisco," which is where Phyllis lives, while Rhoda lives in the New York suburb of Tuckahoe.

What the networks might need for Christmas is a really nifty gazeteer.

THE TOP 10 television programs for the week ending Dec. 21, according to the A. C. Nielsen Co., are:

(1) "All In The Family"; (2) "Charlie Brown Christmas"; (3) Perry Como Special; (4) "Kojak"; (5) "M-A-S-H"; (6) Carol Burnett; (7) Cher; (8) Bob Newhart; (9) "Medical Center"; (10) Mary Tyler Moore.

Rail subsidies will keep open threatened lines

Abandonment notices posted by the Penn Central and other bankrupt railroads being reorganized under the Regional Rail Reorganization Act of 1973 do not necessarily mean that service on any of the lines will be discontinued.

The law specifies that states in the Northeast and Midwest may apply for rail service subsidies to keep any lines they choose in operation to serve local manufacturing plants, mines, farms or other businesses.

The subsidy formula is 70 per cent federal with a 30 per cent state or local contribution. But the United States Railway Assn. notes the formula would be changed under pending legislation in Congress.

A Senate bill would provide 100 per cent federal subsidy for the first year and a 90-10 formula for each year thereafter up to eight years. The House measure would provide a 100 per cent subsidy for six months, and 90-10 for the next year. The federal share then would be reduced 20 per cent each following year.

Rush nursing college gets accreditation

The College of Nursing of Rush University has received initial accreditation for undergraduate and graduate nursing programs for eight years by the National League for Nursing.

Rush University is a part of Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center, 1725 W. Harrison St., Chicago.

The College of Nursing was established as a distinct academic unit of Rush University in November. Current enrollment consists of 223 undergraduate and 47 graduate students. The faculty numbers 112.

The College of Nursing was previously accredited by the North Central Assn. for Accreditation of Colleges and Secondary Schools and approved by the Illinois Board of Registration and Education.

Froehliche Weinachten! Glad Jul! Linksmu Kaledu! Feliz Navidad!

by ELEANOR RIVES

Froehliche Weinachten. Linksmu Kaledu. Feliz Navidad. Glad Jul.

And a great big Merry Christmas to you.

German, Lithuanian, Mexican, Swedish or American, the warmth and joy of Christmas, no matter how it is celebrated, spills over national boundaries, leaps language barriers and unites families around the world.

Northwest suburbia is dotted with foreign-born mothers and fathers who try to preserve for their children, at least in a token way, some of the charming holiday traditions of their native country.

And these are some of the ways they do it.

Nickolaus rewards good "kinder" such as Kurt Fricker, with small, pre-Christmas gifts.

Feliz Navidad!

In Mexico, nine days before Christmas, the posada begins. Persons portraying the Holy Family go from house to house around the block, asking for lodging. Families join the procession until at the last house there is a party.

The women of the block have prepared cookies, roasted corn kernels seasoned with brown sugar, candy and nuts which they pass out in little baskets. The evening is festive with carolling and pinatas for the children.

The posada continues for nine days, each night a different block, a different party. On the ninth day, Christmas Eve, the procession ends at the church where, in solemn ceremony, the players lay the Baby Jesus in the manager.

"In this country the posada cannot be carried out because of the weather and the fact that Spanish-speaking families are so scattered," explained Lydia Salinas, a bi-lingual secretary born in Mexico, now living in Wheeling. She recently graduated from Harper College.

"But we do serve traditional Mexican foods at our Christmas dinner. Tamales are the big thing. Also posole, and flour tortillas, very thin and crisp, with melted brown sugar on top. Sometimes we drink atole, a cooked corn flour liquid. And bunuelos, a round pastry fried in deep fat and topped with cinnamon is customary.

At Little Mexico, a thrift shop on River Road, Sister Therese Mary recalled her Mexican parents taking her to the pastorela, the Christmas pageants, on Christmas Eve in Texas. The pageants depicted the struggle of shepherds trying to get to Bethlehem while the devil tried to keep them away.

"I remember shivering when I watched the devil," she said.

In Mexico, children receive their gifts on Three Kings Day, Jan. 6, or the previous evening, the smaller presents being left in shoes set in the window.

Lydia described another tradition. On New Year's Day or on Jan. 5, a large sweet roll is cut up and served. In one slice is a very tiny doll. Whoever gets the doll must host a big party in February.

Santa Teresita Catholic Church in Palatine, which serves 500 Spanish-speaking families, celebrates the Feast of Three Kings in January. Small gifts and pinatas heavy with candy, nuts and gum await the children.

"But our Christmas observance centers around the crib set in pine branches," said Father Orozco. "After the mass, one by one, parents bring their children up to gaze at the Babe in the manager."

Froehliche Weinachten!

For the Otto Frickers of Mount Prospect, the Christmas season has always begun on Dec. 5, the evening before the Feast of St. Nicholas. Dressed in red coat and cap, wearing a long white beard, "Nickolaus" raps loudly at the door. He demands to know if the three children have been good.

Of course. Very. And right now, they are wide-eyed angels.

In German, they sing a little Christmas song or recite a poem and are rewarded with a small toy, cookies, an apple.

From the first day of December, the children have been following their Christmas calendar, opening a little door each day to see a picture of a tiny toy. On the 24th day, the door opens upon the Manger Scene.

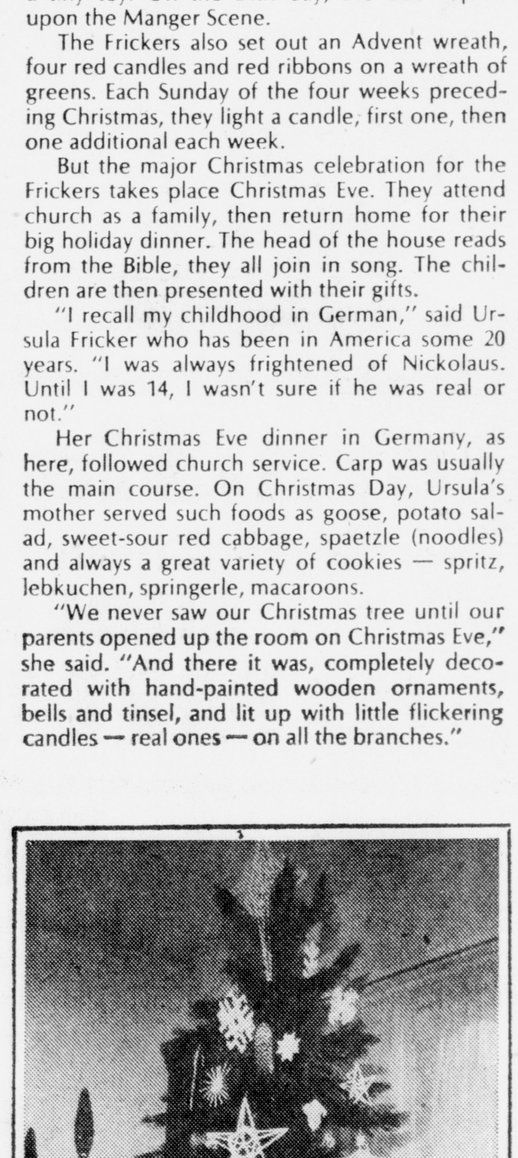
The Frickers also set out an Advent wreath, four red candles and red ribbons on a wreath of greens. Each Sunday of the four weeks preceding Christmas, they light a candle, first one, then one additional each week.

But the major Christmas celebration for the Frickers takes place Christmas Eve. They attend church as a family, then return home for their big holiday dinner. The head of the house reads from the Bible, they all join in song. The children are then presented with their gifts.

"I recall my childhood in German," said Ursula Fricker who has been in America some 20 years. "I was always frightened of Nickolaus. Until I was 14, I wasn't sure if he was real or not."

Her Christmas Eve dinner in Germany, as here, followed church service. Carp was usually the main course. On Christmas Day, Ursula's mother served such foods as goose, potato salad, sweet-sour red cabbage, spaetzle (noodles) and always a great variety of cookies — spritz, lebkuchen, springerle, macaroons.

"We never saw our Christmas tree until our parents opened up the room on Christmas Eve," she said. "And there it was, completely decorated with hand-painted wooden ornaments, bells and tinsel, and lit up with little flickering candles — real ones — on all the branches."



Ingrida shares plotkeles with Paulius.

Glad Jul!

In Sweden, Santa Lucia Day, Dec. 13, marks the beginning of the Christmas season. The eldest girl in the family, dressed in a white gown with red sash and wearing a crown of lit candles set in greens, wakes her parents and brings them cakes and coffee. She is followed by the other children; her sisters as attendants; her brothers, in tall pointed caps with gold stars, as star boys.

Selma Jacobson, who works in the archives of North Park College, and also teaches Swedish at Maine South High School, explained the tradition.

Lucia, queen of light, arrives the morning following Sweden's longest night of the year to celebrate the return of daylight. Legend also has it that long ago famine swept through a Swedish province. A group of starving people were sitting on the shore of a lake on Dec. 13 when Lucia appeared in a boat laden with food.

Today every little town in Sweden has its own contest to choose and crown a Lucia queen.

And so does Chicago. This year 20 girls, aged 16 to 22, appeared at the Civic Center Dec. 13 for the ceremony, directed by Mrs. Jacobson. Among the excited aspiring Lucias was Debra Pearson, 17, a senior at Maine East High School. The Vastgota Gille, her parents' Swedish Club, sponsored her.

A drawing determined the queen, and although it did not turn out to be Debbie, she wore her illuminated candle crown proudly in the solemn Lucia procession.

Born in Sweden, David and Margaret Pearson and their five daughters observe some of the national traditions, though not the Lucia ceremony. "My dad makes glogg every year," said Debbie. "And we always have a huge Swedish smorgasbord on Christmas Eve."

Mrs. Jacobson described Christmas Eve in Sweden. "The smorgasbord always includes a cold cooked, decorated ham," she said. "The supper begins in the kitchen where a type of rye bread is dipped in the hot ham bouillon and served with sausage. That's just the beginning!"

The children set a bowl of rice pudding outside for the Christmas elves, who bring the gifts found under the tree Christmas morning. The family attends early morning church service, then spends the day going from one home to another. It is customary to serve cookies — at least seven different kinds — and one is expected to sample each kind.

The holiday season ends 20 days after Christmas. The children are permitted to "plunder the tree" which has been stripped of ornaments but laden with such goodies as candies, cookies, apples and oranges.

Santa Lucia, queen of light.

Linksmu Kaledu!

John and Laima Salcius of Arlington Heights are proud of their Lithuanian heritage and of the more than three million people in that predominantly Catholic Baltic state, so determined to preserve its national identity despite the fact the country was incorporated into Communist Russia after World War II.

The Salcius family is in no danger of losing the rich traditional background that nurtured its roots. Even 3-year-old Ingrida and 5-year-old Paulius are bi-lingual.

Adorning their Christmas tree are ornaments distinctively Lithuanian. The typical tulip, cross and geometric patterns are made by gluing or stringing together white soda straws of different lengths.

On Christmas Eve, Kaledu Senis (Old Man Christmas) delivers the children's gifts, and the children give a little program of carols around the tree, a Kaledu eglute.

"Although it is a day of fasting and abstinence and no meat is permitted, there are 12 possible courses (to honor the 12 Apostles) to kucios, the Christmas Eve meal," explained Laima. "In Lithuania, straw would first be spread on the table, then covered with the tablecloth. Guests pull a straw to see who will live the longest."

The meal begins with the sharing of plotkeles. The head of the family and then each member passes around his paper-thin wafer with embossed nativity scene.

Other foods include slizikai, tiny hard biscuits served with poppyseed milk; a wide variety of fish, for example, herring pancakes and whole stuffed gefilte fish jelled at the base; mushrooms; beet soup with mushroom ears; cepelinai su kopustais, grated potatoes with sauerkraut filling; kisielius, traditional oatmeal or cranberry pudding; dried fruit compote; sweetened breads; grybai, cookies — shaped, colored and decorated to resemble little mushrooms; a cooked vegetable salad with sour cream and dill dressing; and fresh fruits and nuts.

Following kucios, American-Lithuanian families attend midnight mass.

The Christmas Day meal, also a feast, includes roast duck, goose or pork and many rich tortes.

In Lithuania, Christmas is celebrated for two days. On the 25th, rural families attend 5 a.m. mass, then celebrate at home together, beginning with a sumptuous breakfast feast. The 26th is traditionally a day of visiting.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Boils can be painful

Last month I got a bump on my right leg. I went to my doctor, and he said it was a boil, caused by an ingrown hair. Anyway, I missed a week and a half of school because of it.

Before that boil was healed I got another four inches away from the first one. Now I have six others, five on my left leg and one on my right .At times I can't walk because o fthem.

I have a good job as a nursing aide and might lose it because I can't be on my feet a lot now.

What causes boils? I'm all mixed up because people are telling me so many things. I don't know who to believe. I'm 17 years old and don't want to spend the rest of my life like this.

Have you ever had any? They do hurt. Please tell me what to do to prevent them.

No, I haven't ever had any, but I know they can be quite painful.

They are simply an abscess. The infection begins around the root of the hair, involving the hair follicle. It can be associated with an ingrown hair. The break in the skin that allows the infection to get started is the important point.

The germ that causes it is the staphylococcus. We all have them on our skin, but our defenses keep them from getting through the skin and multiplying.

As the germs multiply the body sets up a defensive reaction. A wall of special tissue forms around the abscessed area. This is to prevent spread. The center where the tissues are infected becomes necrotic, and the destroyed cells and fluid form the material we call pus. The boil is really a large pimple in many respects.

It is important to let the boil alone, or simply apply warm compresses until the infection is localized, and the protective tissue essentially encapsulates the infected tissue. Once the boil is localized, it is usually best for it to be opened and allowed to drain.

If you are shaving your legs or using measures to remove hair from them, it might be best to leave your legs alone until you have been free of boils for some time. Such procedures may cause a break in the skin and allow the infection of a hair follicle.

There is no sure way to prevent them. I would suggest always using clean towels when bathing and washing. You might get some help by daily washing of the surface of the skin with alcohol. This would help kill off the number of staphylococcus germs on the skin. Your doctor needs to check you to be sure you don't have diabetes. This sometimes increases the likelihood of having such abscesses.

As to whom to believe, since your doctor is the expert, it seems pretty logical that you should listen to him and not your friends. As well meaning as they may be, they do not have knowledge or experience, and after all, that is what you are paying the doctor for. Get your money's worth.

For more information on diabetes, send in 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 3-11, Diabetes: Diagnosis, Prevention, and Management, with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Send your letter to Dr. Lamb, in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Adhesive on dryer a sticky problem

Dear Dorothy: My problem is twofold, but there may be just one solution. I got off the tape holding the door on my new clothes dryer, but the adhesive still remains. How can I get this off without damaging the finish Also, I used what I think was masking tape on a poster on the door of the refrigerator. Is there a way to get this off safely?—Mrs. C. Plasek

There isn't a single solution, unhappily. On the dryer there are several things to try — cautiously. First, nail polish remover. If it doesn't work, try either nonflammable trichloroethane or lighter fluid (take extra care with lighter fluid). As for the masking tape, at one time even the manufacturers said it couldn't be removed if left on over 24 hours. However, they now say commercial paint remover can be tried. This is potent, too, so use it gingerly. With any of these removers (assuming they work) there is the possibility of the finish looking dull. The popular appliance detergent wax might bring back the sheen.

Dear Dorothy: Is there any way to sweeten hot onions to put on hamburgers?—Cleo Marwell

Marty Heun contributed this one. Slice the onions and let them soak in water in which one teaspoon of sugar has been dissolved — for 10 to 15 minutes.

Dear Dorothy: When we took off our new aluminum screens this fall, we couldn't get the stains off the windows. Finally, we took a chance on the cleanser that contains some oxalic acid — the one recommended for removing rust. It did a beautiful job.—Margaret Mueller

Proxy mom of 200,000 is retiring

by JEANNE LESEM

Gloria Matthews has been proxy mother to 200,000 needy children.

She estimates that the lives of 11 million have been touched in one way or another by the Foster Parents Plan since she joined it in 1941 as a clerk-typist. Executive director since 1954, she will take early retirement on Dec. 31 this year. FPP was founded as a relief agency for children during the Spanish Civil War. It is based in Warwick, R.I.

In an interview in New York City, Miss Matthews reminisced about her career.

"The foster child is a symbol of the help given whole families," she said.

"RIGHT NOW IN Korea there's a toy factory. We have about a dozen fathers who wanted financial help to make and sell toys. About $2,000 from FPP's general fund set them up in business. Now their teenaged boys help. The company has about 30 employes making and selling toys.

"In Bolivia last year a group of fathers opened a bread bakery. they were from very poor slums and they needed a plant and delivery facilities. Every day now they're all over Alto Plano Mountain at La Paz on their bicycles, selling that bread."

Every dollar donated to help a specific child also helps his family, said Miss Matthews. A childless widow herself, she says, "I have never had any feelings that I missed out on having a child of my own, perhaps because I had this outlet at Foster Parents Plan.

"THE MOTHERS are given nutritional instruction. We try to get the children into vocational schools if they are of an age to work. We have literacy classes for illiterate parents."

Her job provided little direct conract with foster children, but she is as proud as any natural parent of youngsters like the Italian boy, Fiore, from the hill country around Rome who became a saucier aboard the Italian liner Cristoforo Colombo. As achild was taken to the city's famous Hotel Excelsior by a social worker who wanted to show him and other children what could be achieved through education and work.

Financial help always is necessary, but Miss Matthews is convinced that good, warm relationships with foster parents are largely responsible for successes like Fiore's, the Korean toymakers and Bolivian bakers.

ENCOURAGING LETTERS establish such relationships, she said, even though few children ever meet their foster parents.

The plan now works chiefly in third world nations.

"Help is most needed now in Africa, in little villages in Latin America and the Far East," she said.

"After World War II we were rebuilding a social and economic level that had existed before. It is more difficult now because we work almost always in the third world, where you find few human resources with the ability to be leaders."

She said the debilitating climate in tropical countires hampers even those who are intelligent and eager to work.

"WE HAVE CRITERIA in every country," she said. "Our social workers say, "You have to work with us in a partnership.'

"They teach home and health care and nutrition. It's money down the drain if, after the parents and children have physical exams, they fail to boil water or keep the house and the children clean."

The plan depends on private donors for financial support. Miss Matthews said the typical foster parent today is 25 to 40 years old with a college-level education, deeply involved in the world and its needs.

"It is a way of paying back, a way of sharing," she said. "I think they want their children to grow up with a sense of sharing. Often a child in a sponsoring family will correspond the foster child."

Hercules the yucca defies winter

Potting shed

by Mary B. Good

Taking tropical plants for rides in the family car in the winter, especially in stabbing cold, is not exactly using your smarts.

But when "Father Delite," our vivacious pastor, oozed his enthusiasm for a desert nativity scene as the focal point of the Chrristmas altar decorations, so be it.

Naturally, no suitable palm trees, etc., were to be had, unless we traveled 40 miles to get them. So — get the plants, no matter if it is 10 below zero.

"The plants are 'cute,' " said "Father Delite" but what we need is a big, really big plant to bind it all together."

In one of my frequent moments of madness, I offered my pet spineless yucca, Hercules, for Father's nativity "oasis."

Then I told my husband — "The Warrior" I affectionately call him — that he had to make a run in the Bronco with the 6-foot yucca, which would grace the creche in a fitting backdrop for the cow, the camel and the donkey.

"WHY DO YOU HAVE to bring it?" he honked. "Cant's we buy a bale of hay and tape pieces to a broomstick instead?" he pleaded.

"As the husband of the unofficial plant custodian of the Church of What's Happening Now, start up the buggy!" I directed.

He warmed up the car for nearly half an hour and then it ran out of gas.

The thermometer registered 12 below when we started wrapping Hercules in plastic, paper and Granny's feather bed. Hercules, who had just grown 15 inches between the time we found out he was a star in the Christmas extravaganza and now, had to be tilted at a 45-degree angle and hoisted into the Bronco.

WITH ME crouched in the back in a position that would make the Yoga wheel as easy as tying a shoelace, we crawled through a blinding snowstorm. Supporting that 50-pound yucca and sandwiched in an inverted "U" position for 25 miles, did me my time in Purgatory, I figure.

The heater broke half way to church and we had a flat tire, at which time somebody noticed "The Warrior" had forgotten to put the flap up on the back of the Bronco and the snow was blowing in — on Hercules.

We finally made it and rolled up right up over the curb, onto the sidewalk and parked just outside the church door. Two of the gang from the church decorating party helped ease Hercules out and I gave him a dose of Vitamin B for transplant shock, or in this case, transport shock.

"FATHER DELITE likes to go dramatic on Christmas Eve and have all the parishioners enter the church in darkness, so he can suddenly illuminate the whole place in a blaze of visual "ahhs."

I held my breath as the mood evoked "Let There Be Light," and when I opened my eyes, there was the tranquility of the Creche — The Christ Child, Mary, Joseph, along with the camel, the cow and the donkey, the "cute" palms — and Hercules, without chillblains, pneumatic arthritis or anything. Hercules was gracing the scene in all his green spineless splendor, beautiful, unscathed, not only alive, but radiant.

It must have been a yuletide miracle. Hercules, the spineless yucca, defied winter's kiss of death. He developed a cold-hearty backbone for Christmas.

Christmas both sweet and sad

(Columnist's Note: The following was written for a special family who is spending their first Christmas without a beloved member.)

To every thing there is a season.

Christmas. A time to laugh and a time to weep.

It is a season of joy shining in the eyes of small children awaiting a jolly saint, and on the faces of old friends and loved ones reunited.

It is a time for mirth as enduring traditions of celebration are faithfully repeated.

It is a time of remembrance. The mystique of Christmas Past: how must it have ben to slide through Christmas snow in a horse-drawn sleigh, and to watch a Christmas tree lighted by candles?

And the fantasy of our own Christmases Past: The unique memories of every one of us, perhaps the special aromas that came only from our mother's kitchen, or the awe and wonder we felt as small children to discover that Santa really had come during the night and even taken a bite out of the cookie left for him.

AT THE SIGHT of a particular Christmas tree, or the sound of a particular Christmas tree, or the sound of a certain carol, or the taste of a long-forgotten Christmas sweet, the memories come flooding back. Warm and happy and bitter-sweet and sad, all mingled together.

Christmas is a time to weep.

For times and places and people who are no more. For very special people who so enriched the fabric of our lives, who made Christmas and every day special, who made those long-ago times and places what they were. People we loved who will not share this Christmas with us, for there is a time to be born and a time to die.

But most of all, there is a time for hope. Christmas is a season for looking at a star and remembering a baby in a manger and learning to love—and to hope.

Ask Andy

Trees grow up to the 'timber line'

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the Merit Students Encyclopedia to Penny Blackledge, 11, of Scottsdale, Ariz., for her question:

WHAT IS A TIMBER LINE?

The timber refers to the stately trees. The line measures exactly how high they grow on the slopes of a mountain. And the timber line varies in different parts of the world. On the ice-crowned mountains of southern Alaska, the trees can grow no higher than about 1,000 feet above sea level. In the steamy tropics, the timber line may be almost three miles up the slopes.

Our beauteous trees grow wherever they can. In order to stand tall in the woods and forests they must have air and moisture to make their food and deep rich soil to anchor their roots. They also need a warmish summer that lasts at least a few months.

The world's treeless regions do not supply these basic needs. The desert is too dry. In the Arctic tundra, the soil just below the surface is frozen solid, summer and winter. There is no place here for a tall tree to anchor its deep roots.

Some of our low, rounded hills are covered with green forests, up and over the top. Tall trees also thrive far up the sides of the highest mountains — but there are no trees near the rocky, snow-capped peaks. Here the forests march up the slopes so far and no farther — they come to a sudden stop at the timber line.

As we climb higher up a mountain, the air becomes colder and the climate more wintery. In our latitudes, we may start a climb in a temperate forest where oaks and ashes mingle with conifers. Higher up, the year-round climate cools and sturdy evergreens take over the forest. Higher still, we scramble up into an Arctic region.

Here the summers are short and all the nights are frosty. Biting winds howl down from the peaks and the clouds shed snow through most of the year. There is not enough warmth for tall trees and their roots cannot penetrate the cold rocky ground. This is the timber line where the forests must end.

In tropical zones, the rising slopes chill gradually and the timber line may be as high as 13,000 or 14,000 feet above sea level. In our western mountains, the rising slopes chill faster and the forests stop at 10,000 to 12,000 feet. In the far north, the timber line may be as low or even lower than 1,000 feet.

However, other plants also struggle to survive wherever life is possible. Above the treeless timber line, we find shrubs and low-growing plants crouching under the fierce winds. There are alpine meadows and right up near the frozen snow line we find sturdy little lichens clinging to the bare rocks. The earth's brave plants survive wherever life is possible regardless of the hardships.

Andy sends a 7-volume set of C. S. Lewis' "Chronicles of Narnia" to Tammy Miller, 7, of Omaha, Neb., for her question:

WHERE DO HUMMINGBIRDS SPEND THE WINTER?

The one that spends the summer around Omaha is called the ruby-throated hummingbird. This is because the little beauty has a bright red bib under his chin He arrives in spring to build his mini nest and bring up his mini family. Several other gorgeous little hummers come to nest in western states. In California, the pretty little Anna hummingbird stays in California all through the year.

Come fall, the ruby-throated hummer and all his relatives fly south to spend the winter in warmer climates. Some fly to Mexico, some fly on down to South America. These tiny birds fly hundreds of miles and their long journeys seem almost impossible. Some of them fly across the Gulf of Mexico — which is a nonstop journey of about 500 miles. Maybe your favorite ruby-throated hummer went on that impossible trip last fall. And no doubt he plans to come back by the same way in the spring.

Scrooge is bridge skinflint in this play

As any reader of Dickens knows Old Scrooge becomes a great believer in the yuletide spirit and could be found playing bridge with the Cratchits every Christmas.

His six notrump opening can be explained by the fact that 29 points look even better after imbibing a reasonable amount of Christmas cheer and the Cratchits were good hosts.

He looked at the dummy quickly and saw that if both minor suits broke he could take all 13 tricks. Suppose neither one broke. If one defender was long in both, a squeeze could develop.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

Scrooge looked at Tiny Tim and said, "Today is Christmas, let me give you this nice first trick." Then he let the king of spades hold.

It turned out that Scrooge's self-proclaimed generosity was on a par with the preconversion Scrooge.

East had to discard a heart on that second spade. Scrooge ran off four heart tricks and the fourth heart squeezed Tiny Tim who sat East. He had to throw a diamond or a club and Scrooge had his slam.

WHERE IS HE? Arlington's Steve Nowack seems to be checking on the competition as he swims in the 100-yard butterfly event in a recent meet. Nowack is currently sixth on the Paddock honor roll for that event with a time of 59 seconds flat.

Area takes two crowns in mat meet

by KEITH REINHARD
Wrestling Editor

Buffalo Grove's Rich Wilhelm and Dan Lococo of Hersey both saved their best efforts for last at Glenbrook South.

The result in each case was a championship award, highlighting the showings of four local schools in the 16-squad Russ Erb Memorial Wrestling Tournament.

Team laurels at the 12-year-old meet went to Barrington while the Huskies, Bison, Wheeling and Arlington finished among a cluster of outfits between sixth and 14th place. The Broncos, who dominated the tourney back in 1966, came up with only one individual title this time, but it helped them to surpass the 100-point mark and left Niles East at 94½ their closest competition.

Wilhelm, back up to 132 pounds for the gathering after dropping to 126 earlier in the week, turnd back a pair of Mid-Suburban rivals en route to the finals and then roared to a 15-7 victory over Chuck Walsh of Barrington for the title.

Lococo came up next on the mats at 138 and stunned Steve Michaels of Niles East, 12-3, to retain his unblemished record this season.

Only one other area grappler, Bison Doug Browning, advanced as far as the finals. He was subsequently upended in the 155-pound title fray, 9-3.

Hersey finished with 78 points, behind the host Titans (88½), LaGrange (87½) and Antioch (87) in sixth place.

Although Lococo was the only Husky representative in the winner's circle, two of his heavier teammates snared third place windups.

Rick Dewar at 155 and John Haney at 185 both earned their third place laurels by dominating their first matches, then losing to the eventual champs in round two, and finally winning three straight through the wrestlebacks.

Brett Benz at 145 and Dan Sepke at 119 added fourth place medals to the Husky cause while Jim McLean at 112 snared the red consolation prize.

Buffalo Grove came in ninth place with 67½ points. Kirt Lewis helped the effort with a fourth at 126 while heavyweight Dave Martin notched a white consolation triumph and Brian Gibbons (185), Kevin Wagner (98) and Tim Foley (119) topped red consolation fields. Wager rallied in the finals there with a 22-0 stampede.

Wheeling placed 11th at 52½ and the best Wildcat showing was the third posted by Mike Reif at 132. Reif was topped 3-1 by Wilhelm in the semifinals after Wilhelm had just barely squeezed by Card John Preissing 1-0.

Also scoring for the 'Cats were Curt Rathje (fourth at 167), Ray Auger (white consolation winner at 112) Dave Pearlman (fifth at 155) and Bob Busse (white consolation winner at 119).

The Cardinals also had a third place finisher in Dan Weber at 112. Kevin Smith was fifth at 119 as the Redbirds compiled 40½ points for a 14th place berth.

Two greats fall from record book

Paul Logan
Associate Sports Editor

It was a meaningless game with meaning.

As far as the standings are concerned, Minnesota and Buffalo were just playing out the schedule. From a statistical standpoint, however, this game was something special.

Playing on Saturday afternoon in snowy New York state, Fran Tarkenton and O. J. Simpson broke the records of two immortals — Johnny Unitas and Gale Sayers. Ironically, the new marks came just seconds apart.

It was only a matter of when, not if, for Minnesota's Tarkenton. First he tied Unitas at 290 career scoring strikes and then broke it with Chuck Foreman on the receiving end both times.

That second big reception gave Foreman 22 touchdowns for the season, tying a record shared by Sayers and Simpson. But Buffalo's amazing running back established a new TD mark moments later on a thrilling 64-yard pass play.

Two tremendous records were suddenly erased. Sayers' mark had stood for 10 years; Unitas' for two.

When such superstars are knocked down a notch on an all-time list, it jogs the memory a bit. Bear fans must remember Gale's famous rookie season in 1965.

Sayers was battling the great Jimmy Brown as they sought to surpass Lenny Moore's 1964 mark of 20 touchdowns. In the final game of the season, Sayers' fourth quarter score against Minnesota topped Brown by one.

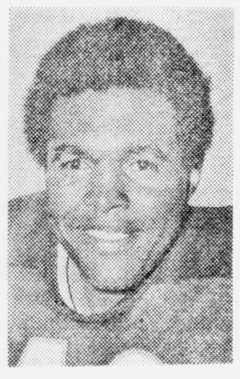
The Wrigley Field crowd roared as Gale scored No. 22 — an unsensational two-yard plunge. Unfortunately, Chicago lost the game, 24-17 and also a possible Western Conference title.

Ironically, people remember another game that season instead — Sayers' six-touchdown explosion against San Francisco.

On a muddy, rainy Chicago day, Sayers tied the NFL record. After his sixth score, the crowd chanted for him to break the mark.

"Nobody was hungrier than I was in wanting him to break that record," Coach George Halas said after the game, "but I'd never have forgiven myself if he got hurt."

So Jon Arnett scored the final touchdown. The veteran back kept looking to the sidelines between plays, wanting "to get out of the game. Heck, I didn't need a touchdown," said Arnett.



Gale Sayers

Johnny Unitas

Halas seemed to contradict himself by putting Gale in to return a kick. On this last play of the game, Sayers just missed breaking the mark.

Unitas was breaking his own records the final two seasons of his career, so his 290th TD pass didn't make headlines.

Trivia experts or people who like to confound cocky trivia experts would care to know that Johnny U.'s last bomb was caught by Bob Thomas. The little known San Diego running back scored from eight yards out.

This 19-year living legend played just two more games. On Nov. 4, 1973, Unitas passed just once and completed it for seven yards. Making that final reception was Jerry LeVias.

To really impress company over the holidays, see if they know who caught Unitas' first pass. It was the Bears' J. C. Caroline, who made an interception.

If you watched the Bears' romp Sunday, you weren't seeing a ghost out of the past when No. 51 showed up on the TV screen. Dick Butkus' famous number is now being worn by somebody named Dan Neal, a center.

Ove the long, proud history of the Bears, nine numbers have been retired — No. 77 Red Grange, No. 66 Bulldog Turner, No. 61 Bill George, No. 56 Bill Hewitt, No. 42 Sid Luckman, No. 41 Brian Piccolo, No. 28 Willie Galimore, No. 5 George McAfee and No. 3 Bronko Nagurski.

Two more should join that list — Dick's 51 and Gale's 40. For some reason, Halas is waiting.

I hope this reminiscing has added to your trivia knowledge. Maybe it will help you win a few bets over the holidays.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

Area gymnastics teams in Rich Central event

Rich Central High School of Olympia Fields will host the only major gymnastics meet of the holiday season when their annual all-around tournament is held Saturday, Dec. 27.

The meet will be divided into two sessions, the first beginning at 1:00 p.m. and the finals at 7:00 p.m.

Elk Grove, fresh off an impressive title showing in the Maine East Invitational last Saturday, will lead a field of five Mid-Suburban League squads into the competition.

Joining the Grens will be defending conference champion Hersey, Buffalo Grove, Schaumburg and Palatine.

Elk Grove head coach Fred Gaines must decide between a pair of top all-arounders, Gene Christensen and Matt Damore. Both have been averaging consistently in the mid-7.0 range all season with Christensen holding a slight edge.

Hersey's Don Von Ebers won't have the same decision to make as Danny Muenz has been the best the Huskies have to offer all season and his 7.77 average in last week's dual meet with Conant tied Christensen for the best in the conference.

Buffalo Grove's man will be Lee Battaglia, who has a season high of 6.14 in MSL competition.

Jim Otis—from lowly pro to NFC's leading rusher

Jim Otis, the St. Louis fullback once worth only a fifth-round draft choice on the trading block, says he's not surprised he won the National Football Conference's rushing title this season.

"I won't say that I was surprised," Otis said. "I can see how other people can be surprised, though.

"But there's more to an athlete than what meets the eye as far as speed, size and things you can measure. There are other things you just can't measure within a person and those are the things I rely on a great deal."

With the bulk of his body in his chest rather than his legs, Otis doesn't fit the mold of a typical NFL running back. He looks more like a hard-nosed linebacker than a runner who gained 1,076 yards rushing, most in five and six-yard spurts through the middle.

"My greatest assets are hitting the hole quickly and reading defenses quickly," he said.

Often chided for lacking the slick side-stepping and fakes of the Cardinals' other running back, Terry Metcalf, Otis has a simple explanation. He makes his moves too quickly.

"I make a lot more moves than people think," he said. "You can see the stuff when you watch the films in slow-motion. Everything happens so quickly people don't realize it."

Otis also pointed to a fact that many clubs learned as St. Louis ran up an 11-3 record en route to the NFC East Division title — you can't key on any one player against a good offensive team.

"Terry had a tremendous year rushing, more than 700 yards, and I went over the 1,000-yard mark," Otis said. "The reason you do that is because of the whole offense, not one or two people."

"I think we have the best offensive line in the conference, in the league this year. We also have the best wide receivers. They not only take the attention away from the backfield but they block downfield. So when you start keying on one person, you're going to really screw yourself up."

Drafted ninth by New Orleans, Otis played little in his rookie year with the Saints.

OHIO STATE football coach Woody Hayes is greeted at Disneyland as the Rose Bowl-bound Buckeyes visit the amusement park. One of the Disneyland characters actually brought a smile to the face of Hayes by wearing an "I Like Woody" button. The character is "Grumpy," one of the seven dwarfs of the Snow White tales.

British boxing KOs Ali-Coopman bout

European boxing authorities are banning a proposed world heavyweight title bout between champion Muhammad Ali and Belgian Jean-Pierre Coopman, the "Lion of Flanders," according to British officials.

Ray Clarke, secretary of the British Boxing Board of Control, said the proposed bout was "a disgrace to boxing." He said the European Boxing Union, the control body, does "not want Coopman getting killed."

Clarke quoted Piero Pini, Italian general secretary of the EBU, that "Coopman will definitely not be allowed to box Ali."

"This Belgian is not even good enough to spar with Ali," said Clarke.

He said Coopman would be told that he must fight British heavyweight champion Richard Dunn for the vacant European crown as scheduled Jan. 20.

Bowl-bound Sooners suspend Ivory

Oklahoma fullback Horace Ivory, the Orange Bowl-bound Sooners' No. 2 ground gainer, has been dismissed from the squad, Coach Barry Switzer confirmed Wednesday.

Switzer declined to elaborate on Ivory's dismissal but other sources reported Ivory recently had a girl in his dormitory room and became involved in a heated argument with a counselor over the incident.

Ivory, contacted at his home in Ft. Worth, declined comment except to say he left school Friday night and arrived home early Saturday.

Ivory averaged 6.4 yards per carry for the Sooners this year, gaining a net of 655 yards on 102 carries. He was second in yards gained to All-American halfback Joe Washington, who had 947 yards on 171 totes.

The Sooners leave Thursday for Miami and will meet Michigan in the Orange Bowl New Year's night.

Ivory, 21, a junior college transfer, had alternated at the starting fullback spot with Jim Littrell.

Evert gets USTA's top ranking

Chris Evert, whose 14 tournament victories in 1975 included the U.S. Open, Tuesday was awarded the No. 1 women's ranking by the United States Tennis Association.

Evert, who turned 21 Monday, also was ranked No. 1 in 1974. Nancy Gunter moved up from fourth to second, the 13th straight year she has earned a spot in the top five. Julie Heldman was ranked third, followed by Wendy Overton, Marcie Louie, Mona Schallau, Kathy Kuykendall, Janet Newberry, Terry Holladay and Rosie Casals.

Buckeyes go behind closed doors

Coach Woody Hayes had Big Ten Conference champions Ohio State working out behind locked gates Wednesday in preparation for their New Year's Day game with UCLA in the Rosebowl.

The UCLA Bruins, Pacific-8 Conference champions, had Wednesday and Thursday off and were to return to the practice field Friday.

UCLA Coach Dick Vermeil said Tuesday's practice was a good one, however, and he was giving the team two days off to celebrate Christmas.

The Buckeyes had a tough workout Tuesday before sportswriters; then Hayes announced the Wednesday session would be in secret.

Maravich returns to Jazz lineup

Pete Maravich will be the Christmas present for the New Orleans Jazz.

Team officials announced Monday that Maravich will return to action tonight against the Houston Rockets. He has been missing from the lineup for six weeks, and the National Basketball Association club suffered during his absence.

Before Maravich suffered a partial left shoulder separation in a game against the Rockets on Nov. 15, the Jazz won six in a row and drew the largest crowds in NBA history, including a record 26,511.

Since Maravich was injured, the Jazz has slipped to an 11-16 record and gone from the top of the NBA Central Division to the cellar.

"We don't expect Pete to be a cure-all for our problems, but we missed his leadership on the floor and he can make things happen," Coach Butch Van Breda Kolff said.

Pete Rose honored by writers

Pete Rose, who played a big role in the sweep of the World Series Championship by the Cincinnati Reds, has been named the Philadelphia Sports Writers Association's Athlete of the Year.

Rose, named the Series' Most Valuable Player and last week named Sportsman of the Year by Sports Illustrated Magazine, will receive his award at the Association's annual banquet Jan. 12.

Prospect boosters form Coach David Keefe Fund

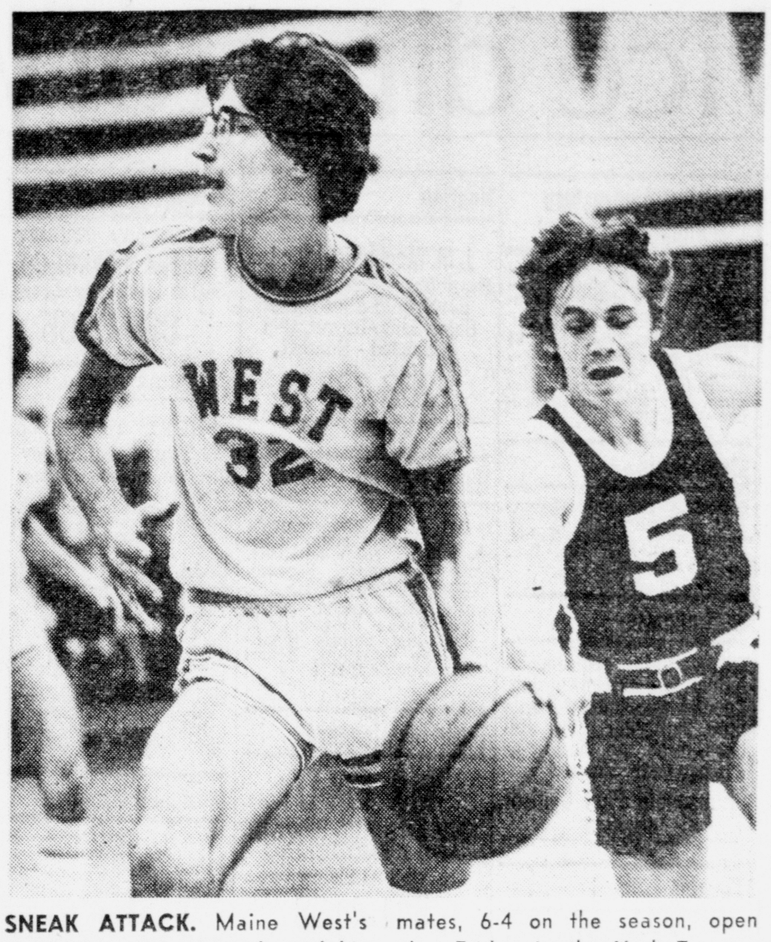
The Prospect High School Booster Club has established the Coach David Keefe Fund at Mount Prospect State Bank.

Keefe, the head football coach at Prospect, is seriously ill with cancer. He is presently being treated at Evanston Hospital.

Anyone wishing to donate money should make checks payable to the Coach David Keefe Fund, Mount Prospect State Bank, Mount Prospect, Ill. 60056.

Keefe, a native of downstate Piper City, joined the Prospect athletic staff in 1974 and turned around the Knight football program. He gained his experience by assisting at Evanston High School six years.

Keefe, a 34-year-old father of three, and his wife, live in Northbrook.



SNEAK ATTACK. Maine West's Buddy Doroskin (32) showed his finesse with the basketball in game against the Niles West Indians. Doroskin and his teammates, 6-4 on the season, open play Friday in the York Tourney against Glenbard North, starting at 12:30 p.m.

Bowling

At Beverly Lanes

In the Lady Elks the league finished up the first half with the same three teams — Pearl, Emerald, and Rhinestone — holding their positions . . . The Christmas party found Ev Wilbins the high series bowler with 145-186-213—544 and high game going to Pat Greener at 218 . . . Other high scratch games were rolled by Bette Hennessy 198, Fran Mecchella 188, Fran Lucas 187, Nancy Schiller 178 . . . Ev Wilbins covered the 3-7, Bev Smith 5-7-9, Marge Colclesser 5-10 . . . High handicap games were 216 by Marge Samuelson, 201 by Pat Campise, and 200 by Fran Batten.

"I played a bit towards the end of the season and was traded right after the Rose, er, Super Bowl," he said, acknowledging his Ohio State collegiate career.

He went to Kansas City in return for a fifth-round draft choice and fared little better.

"I was kind of the backup fullback to Wendell Hayes but Wendell never got hurt," he said.

Somehow, Otis attracted the eye of Joe Sullivan, director of operations and the man who built a championship team out of players disenchanted with other clubs. Sullivan snatched the 27-year-old Otis off the waiver list in September 1973.

Again, Otis waited. First, Donny Anderson was traded. Then, Ken Willard limped off with a knee injury. Otis established himself in the 1974 season with 664 yards in 158 carries and shed 10 pounds to get down to 215 for this season.

"You're going to have peaks and valleys," Otis said. "If you put your head down every time you run into a valley, you're not going to be successful in anything."

More blacks moving to suburbs: study

by KURT BAER

The number of blacks who settle in the Northwest suburbs has increased eightfold since the 1970 Census, a population study shows.

But blacks still are a very small part of the total Northwest suburban population, according to statistics released by urbanologist Pierre de Vise, University of Illinois-Chicago Circle Campus.

They account for only .1 to 1.3 per cent of the residents in Northwest suburban towns.

However, in relative terms their numbers have increased dramatically, to between 300 and 2,417 per cent, prompting de Vise to conclude that the suburban housing market is opening up to blacks.

"I THINK THAT there is a definite tendency toward a considerable increase in the number of blacks in some suburbs. There has been an improvement in the climate for accepting blacks in the more affluent white suburbs," de Vise said. "There are still very few blacks in the blue-collar, working-class white suburbs."

The migration of jobs from the city to suburbs, the decline of some middle-class black neighborhoods in Chicago and the strength of open housing laws have spurred the movement of blacks from city to suburb, de Vise said.

"There is a push out of some of the previously prestigious communities on Chicago's South side such as South Shore and Chatham, and many blacks are moving out.

'The migration of industry is another attractive reason (to move). It has pulled many blacks to Northwest Cook County where so many of the factories have located."

A FACTORY that relocates from Chicago to the suburbs normally undergoes some employe turnover, de Vise said. Not all of the company's workers will follow it to the new location.

"Generally, whites make the adjustment more easily. But blacks who want to continue to work in that plant also might be attracted to a new home in the suburbs."

Not all of the blacks who move to the suburbs come from Chicago, de Vise said. Some move from other cities and suburbs across the country. De Vise said he does not have a figure on the numbers that have moved from Chicago versus some other city. An approximate percentage could be obtained by researching school enrollment records, he said.

Suburban black population increases, by and large, are not due to higher incomes among blacks, de Vise said. "The income has been there all along."

MORE IMPORTANT is the muscle behind federal and state open housing laws that bar discrimination in housing. The laws have been used to help blacks move into some suburbs, he says.

The trend of blacks moving to Chicago's virtually all-white suburbs will continue, de Vise predicted. "I think it will accelerate but still be limited to the more affluent suburbs where many blacks will be home buyers.

"The main challenge of the future will be the dispersal of the black population in the suburbs rather than the concentration of blacks in a given area block by block."

Many so-called "integrated" suburbs are actually segregated in terms of neighborhoods that are practically all-black, while others are all-white.

IN THE NORTHWEST suburbs there is room for some optimism that this historic pattern may not be repeated, de Vise said.

"The main reason for optimism is that there are today 20 or 30 suburbs where blacks are moving in and there is no major threat that any one of these communities will reach what I call the tipping point.

"The frontier for housing (for blacks) is much wider today than it has been.

"Otherwise we have very little basis for optimism. The pattern has been that when a (residential) block becomes 5 to 10 per cent black, it will become very soft to white buyers. We should see that the black expansion (into the suburbs) does not happen as it did in the city," de Vise said.

JOLYN CHIERO helps blacks find homes or apartments in the Northwest suburbs. She is the housing coordinator for the Minority Information Referral Center in Des Plaines.

Yet another reason stands behind the increase in the suburban black population reported in de Vise's study, Ms. Chiero said. It is apparent especially in Elk Grove Village, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates.

"These communities were developed greatly after the 1968 civil rights act, and many developers who built under federal (mortgage) programs had to follow an affirmative marketing plan. They had to make an outreach effort to attract minority buyers," she said.

The recent start of rent subsidies in some apartment complexes such as Schaumburg Green in Schaumburg and Huntington Commons in Mount Prospect has increased the opportunity for moderate-income blacks in the suburbs too, Ms. Chiero said.

"THERE IS NO one reason that a black family chooses to move to the suburbs," she said. "It is a choice each family makes on its own."

The move is not always a happy one. Some urban blacks, like some of their white neighbors, find suburban sprawl difficult to cope with, Ms. Chiero said.

The relatively few numbers of blacks in the Northwest suburbs can make social life difficult, especially for teen-agers. "Many parents out hre don't accept the idea of blacks and whites going out together, and as a result it is extremely difficult for (black) teens to find the social life they need."

Like de Vise, Ms. Chiero said the dispersal of blacks throughout the Northwest suburban housing market is the challenge of the future.

"Too often within an integrated community you still find segregated areas," she said. "I hope you won't find that out here."

Tax credit available for home buyers

Two changes in tax law make record-checking important for the home buyer, reported the Internal Revenue Service district office, Chicago.

The first is the credit for the purchase of a new residence. Generally, the credit is five per cent of the adjusted basis of the new home, to a maximum of $2,000, provided the taxpayer meets certain requirements.

Among the qualifications that must be met for the credit is certification by the seller that the purchase price is the lowest price at which the residence was offered for sale since Feb. 28, 1975. Home buyers who are eligible for the credit, but did not get the certificate when they settled on their new home, should ask their builder for a certificate right away. Without the certificate, the IRS cannot allow the credit.

The other change affects those who sell a home and then buy another to live in. For some time, homeowners could postpone all or part of the tax gain. From the sale of their principal residence if they reinvested the money in anotherhome within a specified period of time. The time limit now has been lengthened. But to take full advantage of the liberalized provisions, the homeowner must have at hand complete records on the old home as well as the new.

Frequently persons change homes because they change jobs. The IRS said those who have changed their jobs should check now to be sure they have a W-2 Form from their old employer to include with the W-2 they will be getting from their new employer.

Gathering records now not only can help in taking full advantage of tax breaks in the new law, but also in making the most of the old law, the IRS said.

October report

Savings increase 826% at Illinois associations

The national savings record set by savings institutions during October is reflected in a dramatic increase reported by thrift institutions in Illinois.

The Illinois Savings and Loan League reports that net new savings at Illinois savings and loan associations increased 826 per cent compared to September savings. The new savings figure of $153,996,000 was the highest monthly total for the past eight years.

Robert J. Hansen, president of the Illinois league, said the Federal Home Loan Bank Board statistics "reflect a more active savings period, not unusual for this time of year, and the recent decline in security yields."

He said the net savings inflow for September was $16.6 million and in October 1974, the withdrawals at Illinois institutions exceeded new savings by $19,251,000.

Total construction and purchasing loans closed by Illinois associations during October dropped 0.7 per cent from $390.2 million in September to $387.5 million during October. The figure compares to loans closed in October 1974 of $161,502,000.

Home loans in Illinois for savings and loan associations increased 0.9 per cent compared to September, from $317.2 million to $320.2 million.

The loans are commitments for construction and purchase. The October figure is a 137.5 per cent increase from year-earlier figures.

Mortgage loan commitments outstanding during October totaled $612.8 million, a 6.1 per cent decline from September totals and an increase of 37.7 per cent compared to the total in October 1974.

During October, Illinois savings associations had mortgage loans on their books of $20.18 billion, a 0.9 per cent increase from September figures and a 9.2 per cent increase compared to year-earlier figures.

Total savings capital held by associations during October reached $20.8 billion, an 0.8 per cent increase compared to year-earlier totals.

Coming up

Jan. 8: The businessmen's breakfast club of Northwest suburban Chicago will meet at the Camelot Restaurant, Des Plaines. Russ Johnson of the First National Bank of Des Plaines will discuss data processing.

Jan. 12: Taxation problems for condominium apartment associations will be discussed at a Community Assn. Institute general meeting. The session will start at 7:30 p.m. at the Atrium development, 21 Oak Tree Ct., Elmhurst.

Housing starts up 82%, Bell Federal reports

Chicago area housing activity increased 82 per cent during November compared to building permits issued a year earlier, according to the Bell Federal Savings survey of new building.

The total number of single-family and apartment permits issued during the month reached 2,224 units compared to the 1,225 units reported in November 1974. Single-family housing showed the greatest increase. The jump in home permits from 646 units to 1,365 units was a 111 per cent yearly increase. Multi-family permits increased 48 per cent from 579 units to 859 units during the same period.

A significant change in suburban single-family housing trends is indicated in the building report, Bell said. Permits for homes climbed from 457 a year earlier to 1,059 in November of this year, a 132 per cent increase.

The combined total of permits issued for single-family homes and apartments for the first 11 months of the year was 4 per cent higher than figures reported for the same period last year. The 21,838 units compare to 20,969 units previously reported.

'Mini boom' seen in housing industry

A "mini-boom" in the housing industry is expected in 1976, said Jackson Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston.

Goss said approximately 1.5 million housing starts are projected for the coming year. The Chicago-Milwaukee corridor is among the 10 "hot areas" in the United States, he said.

Banks leaders in loans: exec

Banks are a leader in construction mortgage lending, said Richard W. Carpenter of the American Bankers' Assn.

Carpenter, chairman of the association's Housing and Real Estate Finance Division, said figures compiled by the U. S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development indicate that banks have nearly $6 billion in outstanding loans, or 35 per cent of the total construction loans for the first seven months of 1975.

It's a great time of the year. We hope you enjoy every minute of it.

$20 million available for mortgage loans

An immediately available $20 million for home mortgages along with scaled-down and graduated interest rates have been announced by Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association of Berwyn.

The rates will prevail at Lincoln Federal's Hoffman Estates office at Higgins Road and Gannon Drive.

Eligible will be prime owner-occupied single-family detached homes The maximum amount of loan will be held generally to $55,000.

President Frank J. Kinst declared that 80 per cent loans will require 8.88 per cent interest. Rates will drop 11 points . . . 8.77 . . . 8.66 . . with each 10 per cent terrace of appraised value to a low 8.55 for 50 per cent loans and smaller. Mortgages can be for either 25 or 29 years.

In the 80, 70 and 60 per cent brackets, the service point schedule has been set at 1.5 for 25 years and 1.75 for 29 years. Two points will apply for the "50 and under" service charge.

No appraisal fee, credit charge or "pre-pay" penalty is called for on the preceding.

Eight-one to 90 per cent loans ask 2½ and 2¾ points plus mortgage insurance, respectively, for terms of 25 and 29 years.

The interest ate for "90's" is 9.25 per cent, beneath the maximum that will govern in Illinois until January 1, 1977.

Buildings in this category must have 1,000 square feet of living area. Those with wells and septic tanks will not be considered.

Lincoln Federal offices, Kinst said, will review the rate terracing every 30 days, starting Feb. 1.

New home designs offer flexibility

The flexibility of having a ready-made in-home office, library, a second bedroom or a guest room is featured in a new one-bedroom-with-den condominium home just introduced at Village on the Lake in Elk Grove Village.

"The unusual feature of this new concept," said Jack McGlinn, sales manager for the northwest suburban condominium apartment complex, "is that the den comes with a built-in wall unit, including shelf space, a television alcove and a desk. The buyer need not worry about setting up this facility for himself. We have already done it for him."

The den in this new design measures 12-by-11½ feet, and provides ample space for use as a bedroom if the owner desires. The home also features two full baths, a 20-by-13-foot living room with sliding glass doors leading to a large balcony, a 9-by-9-foot dining room, a 9-by-8½-foot kitchen, and a 16-by-11½-foot master bedroom suite with a dressing area. Units with this layout are priced from approximately $30,000 to $33,000.

Village on the Lake also has two-bedroom, two-bath condominiums available, ranging from $31,790 to $39,290 in price.

The community offers a 35-acre lake for sailing and fishing, four tennis courts and an outdoor heated swimming pool. Nearby is a 2,000-acre forest preserve as well as parks, schools, hospitals and excellent rail and highway transportation.

Standard features in Village on the Lake condominiums include individually controlled central heating and air conditioning; wall-to-wall carpeting in all rooms except the kitchen and breakfast room; a lobby intercom-security phone system; additional telephone jacks in living room, bedrooms and den; single control faucets; and deluxe lighting fixtures.

Each of the five mid-rise buildings in the 442-apartment complex has a private social room, automatic elevators, a master television antenna system, laundry facilities, individual storage lockers and a bike and buggy storage area.

All of the outside maintenance is handled by an association, permitting homeowners to enjoy leisure living.

The complex is being developed by United Development Co., a subsidiary of Urban Investment and Development Co.

To visit Village on the Lake, take the Northwest Tollway to the Arlington Heights Road south exit. Go south to Biesterfield Rd., turn west two blocks on Wellington Ave. Models are open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday.

Buyers seek community package

"It used to be — and not too long ago — that when you bought a home, the 'extras' were all on the inside. But times are changing.

"The trend today is for home purchasers to seek out a community package — an environment in which the home itself is but the starting point."

So decalres Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry.

According to Goss, new home seekers across the nation are more concerned with the "where" than the "what" of their chosen dwelling-place, "and the wave of community-oriented home buyers has been increasing at a record pace."

In fact, a recent IMIC national survey of 840 new home-owning families revealed:

68 per cent of the group placed location of their home on a level of importance with the features of the house itself.

Slightly over two-thirds of the families also indicated that they had actively "community-shopped" while seeking a new residence.

70 per cent of the group believed that the excellence of community resources and amenities has influenced them against any additional relocation for at least the next five years.

76 per cent of the families expressed satisfaction with their new neighborhoods and homes, and stated that the community "had lived up to anticipated standards."

"There was a general consensus," Goss notes, "as to the most important community resources," with the following items given top priority as looked-for community offerings:

Security — safety inside and outside the home was mentioned by nearly all the respondents.

Manageable traffic patterns and plenty of open, uncongested space.

Convenience of nearby jobs and schools along with close-in shopping and entertainment facilities.

"In many ways," Goss concludes, "a home is now an integral part of the world outside — a center from which social, professional and recreational opportunities can be enjoyed by every member of the family."

Shutters provide added insulation

Exterior rolling shutters are offered for sale by Mr. and Mrs. Helmut Hirth, 1725 Maya Lane, Mount Prospect.

Exterior shutters have been used in Europe for many years, Mrs. Hirth said. They are made of plastic. When the shutters are installed on the exterior of a house, the roller mechanism is concealed by a box. The shutters provide insulation, noise control and wind protection.

Solar homes under construction

A unique solar energy-powered space heating and domestic hot water system is being installed in four townhomes now under construction at New Century Town in Vernon Hills, just south of Libertyville.

The solar homes are part of Republic Square, a new cluster of 90 townhomes being built by Unted Development Company, whose parent, the Chicago-based Urban Investment and Development Co., is a subsidiary of Aetna Life & Casualty.

United is undertaking the solar project in conjunction with Ecosol Ltd., a New York City firm specializing in the design and manufacture of energy conservation systems for the housing industry, and Owens-Illinois, Inc., Toledo, Ohio. Owens-Illinois will manufacture the solar collectors, a key part of the system to be installed in these townhouses. Design of the total system is being done by Ecosol.

Each of the four townhouses will have its own individual solar energy system. It is anticipated that the system will provide 60 per cent of the energy required to heat and supply each townhouse. The backup power, for use whenever solar power is insufficient, will be provided by an electrically-operated water-to-water heat pump, in conjunction with a gas-fired or electrically operated hot water heater.

Robert Frommer, president of United and executive vice president of Urban, said that four standard production model townhomes will be used for the solar system. In all other respects, the townhomes will be virtually identical to Republic Square homes heated with conventional gas-fired equipment and currently selling for between $40,500 and $54,300.

"Our purpose is to determine if solar heat is practical in the Chicago area from a technical standpoint and economically feasible in production housing," Frommer said. "We are convinced that rising energy costs, coupled with dwindling domestic fuel resources, have created a strong potential demand for a practical, reasonably priced solar energy system."

Frommer noted that, as far as is known, this project will be the first test of a solar powered heating system in production homes.

The United executive estimates the solar system will cost approximately $12,000 per home, but that amount will be reduced with mass production. The four homes to be equipped with solar powered heating systems will be rented during the two-year research period so that United can monitor results.

Two of the townhomes will be two-bedroom models containing some 1,400 square feet and two will have three bedrooms, with a total area of about 1,600 square feet. The homes are slated for completion in March.

Buyers discover 2-family homes

"More and more families across the country are exploring the advantages of two-family homes — a housing concept which dates back to the Colonial period."

So observes Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry.

The first two-family homes were a product of Pilgrim ingenuity. The concept, however, did not assume its greatest popularity until the 1930's.

"Since then," he notes, "continued increases in urban land costs and maintenance expenses have made the two-family home an especially attractive dwelling choice for a number of reasons."

Some of the specific fiscal pluses of the two-family home include:

• A greater degree of flexibility on down payment is possible when the two-family home represents a joint venture between families planning to live in the dwelling.

• Monthly mortgage payments build up owner equity — taxes, depreciation and interest payments are income-tax deductions.

• Dual units are readily salable — should moving be necessary — because they are income producing and have attained a scarcity value as few new ones are now being built.

"There were only 32,000 two-family homes built in 1975," Goss points out.

IMIC studies, meantime have revealed three main versions of the two-family dwelling:

• Economy model: the converted one-family house with a top floor made into a separate apartment.

• Separate entrances: buildings specifically designed to house two families in first-and second-floor apartments.

• Top ofthe line: tandem housing joining two-level "attachedaa mini-houses usually with separate front and back doors.

"The two-family home owner may well be the trend setter in the last half of the 70's in both urban and suburban areas," Goss concludes.

Local agency wins honors

The Greater Chicago Agency of Provident Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia captured top prize in its division during the firm's fall sales campaign, Stanley Cup II. Achieving 239 per cent of its goal, the Rolling Meadows-based agency also placed third of all agencies in the company's overall standings and won its inter-agency competition during the six-week contest.

On behalf of his associates, Robert L. Guetzlaff, CLU, manager of the Greater Chicago Agency, was awarded an engraved cup and certificate.

Provident Mutual's Stanley Cup II sales campaign, named in honor of the firm's President Edward Stanley, CLU, emphasized the "extraordinary team effort" necessary for the success of a professional insurance enterprise in today's economy. With the participation of all of its agencies throughout the nation, Provident Mutual realized 115 per cent of its $130 million quota during the contest.

Four attain million mark

Four sales associates in Baird & Warner's Mount Prospect office have been named to the company's 1975 Million Dollar Club for completing at least $1 million of real estate sales for the year.

The group includes Ruth Clark, Dick Kalinowski, Jim Murphy and Therese Schoen. They all reached the million dollar mark during October.

The achievement was a first for Mrs. Clark, who joined Baird & Warner in 1974. She has been a resident of Arlington Heights more than 20 years. She is a member of the First Presbyterian Church and is past chairman of its Board of Deaconesses and Women's Circle.

Kalinowski, a designated GRI, has been to the million dollar circle three times before since joining Baird & Warner in 1969. He is a member of the Arlington Squares and lifetime member of the Disabled American Veterans, Northwest Chapter No. 38.

It is three straight for Murphy, also a designated GRI, who thereby qualifies for lifetime membership in the company's and Illinois Association of Real Estate Board's Million Dollar Clubs. He belongs to St. Emily's Church and is active in the River Trails Civic Association, the Knights of Columbus and the Boy Scouts.

Like Kalinowski, Mrs. Schoen has scored $1 million sales years four times. She is a lifetime member of the MAP Million Dollar Sales Club and a member of the Mount Prospect Business and Professional Women's Club.

All four live in the Mount Prospect/Arlington Heights area and all are active in the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

Older homes are popular

"Many young families are rediscovering the charm of old homes — and where these are not readily available, investing in such unique dwelling alternatives as yesteryear's icehouses, churches, post offices and schoolhouses."

So observes Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry. The company works with lenders, such as savings and loan associations, mutual savings banks and commercial banks, by insuring the top 20-25 per cent of high-ratio conventional mortgage loans.

According to recent IMIC studies, there has been a resurgence of interest around the country — particularly within the 24-39 years-of-age group — in unusual conversions.

"Among the factors influencing this trend," Goss notes, "are advantageous price differentials and renewed pride in traditional American architecture fostered by the upcoming celebration of the nation's Bicentennial."

Other motivators, he reports, include:

Flexibility provided by many "other-use" homes in today's marketplace; churches and schools, for instance, offer intriguing space possibilities along with opportunities to accommodate present or future family growth.

Location of these one-time functional structures is often ideal for young families; schools and post offices are traditionally found close to town centers and in ready proximity to major transportation routes.

Would-be decorators and landscape artists can develop exciting new concepts for these older structures, building on already existing features such as skylights, slant-roofed rooms, cathedral windows and "vestry yards."

Century-old homes also offer a special chance to enjoy a uniquely different residence; for neighborhood newcomers, such buildings come with a built-in atmosphere of community tradition and achievement.

"Turning to the architectural past," Goss concludes, "is, in fact, an exciting adventure — as well as a meaningful lesson in American history and heritage."

Christmas spirit brightens hospital menus

On a day when most people are gathered around tables laden with Christmas foods, nearly 700 area residents are facing hospital trays instead.

The prospect isn't as bleak as one might anticipate. Certainly the surroundings are not ideal. And home-cooked meals can seldom be matched.

But cold duck wine, broiled lobster tail and duckling with wild rice do not sound like the typical hospital foods. In fact, the menus three area hospitals have prepared for today could easily be from gourmet restaurants.

"Our hospital has tried to upgrade the menus and improve quality and selection," said John Chrisopulos, food service manager of Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines. "After all, food is the only thing the patient has to criticize."

At Holy Family patients may choose Christmas luncheon items from a menu which includes chilled rose wine, artichoke hearts with sour cream dressing, the duckling with wild rice and orange sauce, broiled filet mignon with mushroom cap and mince meat pie.

For dinner, patients may have their chilled dinner wine with Chicken Kiev, spinach souffle, Caesar salad and fruitcake.

Patients on specialized diets will find some substitutes on their menu, said Chrisopulos. But the basic extravagance remains.

"The old-fashioned idea of tasteless food is out," he said. "We are finding different spices to compensate for lack of salt or sugar required by certain diets. We want to make their meals as good as we possibly can."

All food at Holy Family is prepared from scratch, Chrisopulos said. And, while rising costs have been a problem for the hospital's budget, he doesn't worry much about the cost of his Christmas day meals.

"We will not sacrifice quality for cost," he said.

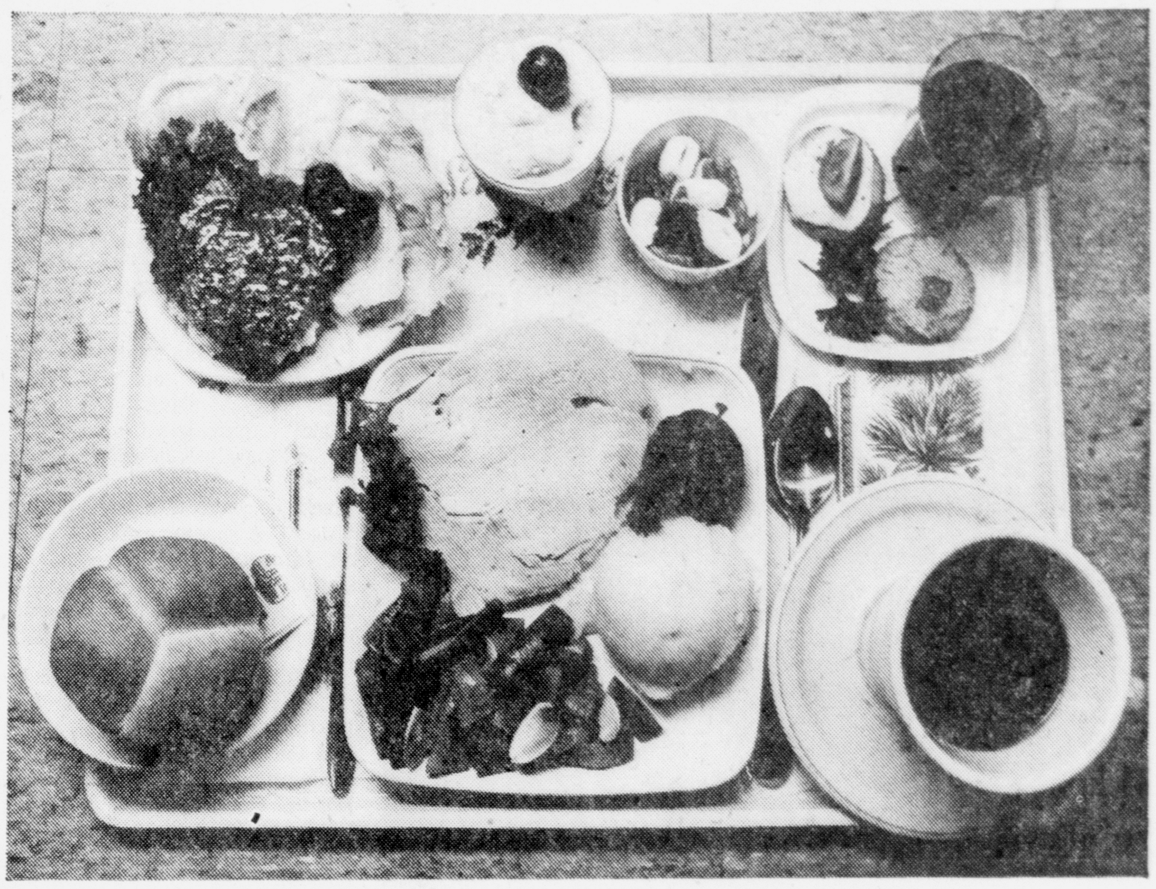
Nor do the other two area hospitals.

At Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village, another extravagant meal is being prepared. On their menu are wine, roast turkey with dressing and giblet gravy, broiled lobster tail, fruit plate with sherbet, asparagus with Hollandaise sauce and eggnog ice cream.

And in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, the director of food services, Ruth Shub, said canapes will be served with the cold duck wine before the dinner. Among the choices on the menu are capon with celery-nut dressing and molded cranberry and cream cheese salad.

She said guests are allowed to buy a meal and eat with the patients if they want. In the past, she said, patients and guests "definitely enjoyed the meal."

"They always seem to appreciate the special things we do — especially on Christmas," she said.



A week's menus are posted at Northwest Community Hospital. Patients and personnel then select the foods they want, giving food service workers an idea of the quantity of each item needed.

A little wine, poured by Kathy Oakes, R.N., goes a long way toward perking up the sagging Christmas spirit of Mary South, a patient in Holy Family Hospital.

Cheerful attitudes and creative hands produce festive foods for Christmas at Holy Family. Left to right are Ila Staton, JoAnn Schwartz and Nicole Bieber, three of the 58 food service personnel who cook 1200 to 1400 meals a day.

Efficient tray lines help maintain the quality of food prepared and served in hospitals. As trays move down the conveyor belt, correct foods for the prescribed diets are quickly dished up. A worker at the end of the line checks for mistakes before sending meals on to the patients.

DECKED WITH a bit of holiday spirit, this menu from Holy Family Hospital lists foods which are well tested and supervised in the kitchens before being sent to the patients.

Ground beef proves a tricky buy

BY THE EDITORS OF CONSUMER REPORTS

(Eighth in a series)

Ground beef can be made from a variety of cuts of beef, all containing differing amounts of lean beef and fat. But no matter what cut it's from, ground beef, according to federal law, must contain no more than 30 per cent fat.

At the store, the most common labels for ground beef are "ground beef," "ground chuck," and "ground round." Ground round is supposed to be the leanest cut, followed by ground chuck, and then by ground beef, which is sometimes called "hamburger." A shopper can't tell the exact lean-fat content of ground beef. Depending on the cut it was taken from, ground round may sometimes contain as much fat as ground chuck.

WHICH GROUND beef is the best value for the money? The answer is a bit tricky. It seems obvious enough that the leaner the ground beef, the more protein in the uncooked meat. But the U.S. Department of Agriculture says that the leaner cuts of ground beef usually cost more than their lower fat content is worth. Consumers Union advises you to buy the least expensive cut of beef and have the beef ground to order.

Another way to save money on meat bills is to use ground beef mixed with soy extenders. These products come in two basic forms:

• Premixed ground beef and textured vegetable protein (made from soybeans) sold at the supermarket or butcher's meat counter either in the form of patties or in bulk.

• A packaged dry product of textured vegetable protein (made from soybeans) that you mix at home with ground beef.

The premixed beef-soy products you buy at the supermarket usually contain three parts beef to one part watered soy product. If you follow the instructions for mixing on the packages of dry textured vegetable protein, you'll get two parts beef to one part watered soy product.

Consumers Union's consultants compared all-beef patties — made from combined ground round and ground chuck — with patties made from store-prepared beef-soy mixes and also patties prepared at home from soy product mixed with meat. As a rule, the all-beef burgers tasted best. As for the two types of soyburgers, Consumers Unon's testers liked the taste of those made with a packaged dry mix better than that of the premixed beef-soy products. In terms of protein content, both beef-soy blends had about the same amount of protein as the all-beef patties.

THOUGH YOU MAY prefer the taste of all-beef patties, Consumers Union thinks it's well worth considering the savings possible by mixing textured soy product with ground beef. The savings will vary, of course, with the price of the meat and the price of the soy extender.

You may think that ground beef will have a longer storage life if you buy it already frozen at the supermarket. On the contrary, Consumers Union's tests have shown that a much poorer quality of meat is generally used for frozen meat products and that an overlong storage period — especially if the freezer temperature stays above 0 degrees Fahrenheit — gives the meat a stale, rancid odor. In terms of protein content, frozen ground beef costs over 60 per cent more than the average price of fresh ground beef because of low-quality meat used for the frozen product. What's more, Consumer's Union's consultants judged most of the patties made from frozen ground beef to be poor in taste.

Hospital recipes are not for patients only

Hospital kitchen personnel rely on accurate, well-tested recipes to prepare for patients. Here are three holiday recipes the area hospitals feature on their menus.

MOLDED CRANBERRY AND CREAM CHEESE SALAD

from Northwest Community Hospital

24 ounces cherry or raspberry gelatin
4 quarts hot water
3 pounds frozen cranberry relish
1 pound chopped apples
1 pound crushed pineapple
12 ounces lemon gelatin
2 pounds cream cheese

Dissolve cherry or raspberry gelatin in 2 quarts hot water. Add frozen cranberry relish, chopped apples and crushed pineapple. Pour half of mixture into a 12 by 20 inch pan and place in refrigerator to congeal.

Dissolve lemon gelatin in remaining water. Add cream cheese and place in mixer to blend. Allow to congeal slightly; then spread over jelled mixture in pan and return to refrigerator to set.

Pour remainder of cranberry mixture over cream cheese layer and place in refrigerator until firm. Makes about 50 servings.

SPINACH SOUFFLE

from Holy Family Hospital

1½ ounces butter
1½ ounces flour
7 ounces (14 tablespoons) milk
4 ounces chopped spinach
4 eggs, separated
Nutmeg, as desired
English mustard, as desired

Melt butter in sauce pan; when hot, add flour to make a roux; continue cooking for 2 to 3 minutes. Add milk, a little at a time, stirring constantly. When all milk is added, add spinach and simmer about 3 minutes and remove from heat. Add seasoning. Beat egg yolks till fluffy and add to spinach mixture. Beat egg whites till stiff and fold into mixture. Place in well-buttered casserole and bake in waterbath at 400 degrees for 20 to 30 minutes. Serves 3.

2 oranges
Sugar substitute equal to 1½ cups
2 envelopes artificially sweetened lemon gelatin

Grind cranberries and orange together and add sugar substitute. Prepare gelatin. When it begins to set, stir in cranberry mixture. Pour into ring mold and jell until firm. Serves 8. It is less than 25 calories per serving and a free food substitute for diabetics.

No woes with leftovers

by LOIS SEILER

Leftover Christmas turkey need not be a problem. Indeed, it can be the answer to elegant dinner fare.

Janet Wills of Arlington Heights has an excellent recipe for Turkey Tetrazzini which she enjoys serving for a luncheon or dinner. The recipe is so good, that even if you don't have leftovers you may wish to bake a rolled turkey roast or cook chicken just to try it.

Cooked spaghetti or noodles are combined with a rich cream sauce lightly laced with sauterne. This is layered in a casserole with cooked turkey and mushrooms, and all is topped with a generous sprinkling of Parmesan cheese. The dish may be made ahead and will freeze beautifully.

If serving Turkey Tetrazzini for a holiday luncheon, Janet suggests the following accompaniments: a colorful gelatin mold with a fruit salad dressing, homemade relishes (she cans her own sweet and dill pickles, green tomatoes and chutney), zucchini bread or rolls and a light, lemon dessert.

Pretty in appearance, the three-layered gelatin mold is in Christmas colors. It is enhanced by a dressing which Janet learned to make from her mother. Rich and creamy, it is pineapple flavored and complements almost any fruit or gelatin salad.

Janet likes to serve batter breads for luncheons, and her current favorite is zucchini. Two cups of this vegetable are used in her recipe. Although the flavor of the squash is not discernible, zucchini contributes a moistness to the bread texture.

"It tastes like a spice cake," Janet explained, "and may be spread with butter or cream chese. It will keep at least a week in the refrigerator and freezes well."

If she could, Janet admits she would spend all of her time in the kitchen. She enjoys entertaining for guests she, her husband Paul and her three children invite. Formerly a Girl Scout leader, Janet now serves as president of Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Woman's Club. In her spare time, she likes to crochet.

TURKEY TETRAZZINI

4 cups cooked turkey, cut in small pieces
1 pound egg noodles or spaghetti
4 tablespoons butter

MOIST AND SPICY, Zucchini Bread is a favorite item on Janet Wills' entertaining menus. The bread tastes like a spice cake and freezes well or will keep a week in the refrigerator.

Cook finds success in squash, leftover turkey

4 tablespoons parmesan cheese

Cook noodles as directed on package. Drain and add butter and cheese. Toss and set aside. Next prepare the following mixture:

1 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper

Saute mushrooms in butter. Season with garlic salt and pepper. Set aside. Prepare the following sauce:

1 cup melted butter
1½ cups sifted flour
2 cups warm Half and Half
4 cups warm chicken broth
½ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons sauterne

Blend flour in melted butter. Cook slowly a few minutes. Gradually add Half and Half and chicken broth, stirring constantly. Cook until thick and smooth. Then add salt and sauterne and simmer a few minutes longer. If too thick, add 2 tablespoons milk.

Mix noodles and sauce together. In a greased, deep 9 by 13-inch casserole, spread half of the noodle-sauce mixture. Place turkey over this and cover with sauteed mushrooms. Spread remaining noodle-sauce mixture on top, and sprinkle all with ½ cup parmesan cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. If dish was made ahead and frozen, bake an additional half hour. Serves 8 to 12.

CHRISTMAS GELATIN MOLD

First layer:

1 3-ounce package cherry-flavored gelatin
1 can pitted bing cherries (1 pound size)
1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin

Dissolve gelatin in one cup boiling water. Drain cherries, measure juice and add enough water to make one cup. Add to gelatin. Soften unflavored gelatin in 1/8 cup cold water and add to hot gelatin mixture. Add cherries. Pour into an oiled 1½-quart ring mold and chill until set.

Second layer:

2 3-ounce packages cream cheese
Cream or mayonnaise
½ cup finely-chopped almonds

Soften cheese and blend in enough cream or mayonnaise to make it spreading consistency. Stir in almonds and spread over firm red layer. Refrigerate until firm.

Third layer:

1 3-ounce package lime gelatin
1 cup hot water
1 cup cold water
1 small jar green maraschino cherries, drained and halved

Dissolve gelatin in hot water and add cold water. Stir in cherries. Pour over cheese layer and refrigerate several hours until set. Serves 8 to 12.

FRUIT SALAD DRESSING

2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons sifted flour
½ cup granulated sugar
2 egg yolks
½ cup pineapple juice
1/8 teaspoon salt
2 egg whites, beaten to medium consistency
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1½ cups strained, lukewarm pineapple juice
1 cup whipping cream (optional)

Combine melted butter and flour in top of a double boiler. Mix until smooth. Then add ½ cup sugar.

Mix egg yolks with ½ cup pineapple juice. Add this and salt to above, mixing thoroughly.

To the beaten whites, add 2 tablespoons sugar; beat only until blended. Blend gently into first mixture. Slowly add lukewarm, strained pineapple juice.

Cook in the upper part of a double boiler or heavy saucepan until thick and smooth, stirring or whisking constantly. Let simmer several minutes, watching carefully that it doesn't curdle, keeping flame low. If it should curdle, beat a few seconds with an egg beater. Allow mixture to become cold. Then, if desired, fold in whipping cream that has been beaten to medium consistency. Serve over gelatin mold or fruit salad.

ZUCCHINI BREAD

1 cup oil
2 cups sugar
3 eggs
2 cups peeled, grated zucchini
3 teaspoons vanilla
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground ginger
1 teaspoon ground cloves
½ cup nuts, coarsely chopped

In an electric mixer, beat together oil, sugar and eggs. Add remaining ingredients in order listed, beating well. Turn into two 9 by 5 by 2½-inch greased and floured bread pans and bake at 325 degrees for one hour. Let cool in pans for 15 minutes. Remove and let cool on racks.
